Our values at the FCA

Our values support our Mission and reflect what's important to us.

We serve the public and our decisions directly affect the wellbeing of people, businesses and the UK economy. So our values matter. They represent the culture we aspire to every day, guiding our judgements, building trust and helping us to be at our best.

The FCA expects, that as an employee, you role model and uphold each value in everything you do - in delivering your work, your relationships with colleagues, and how you represent the FCA externally.

The infographic is set against a dark purple background with a yellow-to-orange gradient at the bottom. It features five value categories, each with a circular icon and a list of descriptive phrases. At the bottom right, there is a yellow line-art illustration of three people in professional attire.

There is more detail and guidance about our values on the Intranet.

The Payment Systems Regulator has its own statement of values which FCA employees working for the PSR should refer to.

About this handbook

This handbook is divided into 2 sections.

Section 1 of the handbook sets out the main policies and procedures that you will need to know while working at the FCA. The policies and procedures in this section apply to all FCA employees, including those working for the Payment Systems Regulator (the 'PSR' is an independent economic regulator, which is a subsidiary of the FCA), and do not form part of the terms of your contract with us.

Some policies in section 1 apply both to employees and to everyone else who works at the FCA including contractors, consultants, agency workers and interns. These policies are the:

- Information and systems acceptable use policy
- Security and vetting policy
- Whistleblowing policy
- Equal opportunities and respect at work policy
- Trans inclusion policy
- Domestic abuse policy
- No smoking and vaping policy
- Health and safety policy

We reserve the right to make changes to policies and procedures, or to withdraw or replace them, from time to time. When we do this, we will discuss any changes with the Staff Consultative Committee as appropriate, and tell you about any changes via the Intranet.

Please take the time to read and understand this handbook, and ensure you are familiar with and comply with its policies and procedures. If you have any questions about these or what you have to do to comply with them please speak to your line manager and/or the HR Helpline.

All managers have a specific responsibility to operate according to the provisions in this handbook, ensure that employees understand the standards of behaviour we expect of them, and take action when behaviour falls below these standards. Managers have a specific responsibility to lead by example. They should also ensure that those they manage adhere to our policies and procedures and promote our aims and objectives with regard to equal opportunities and our values.

Section 2 contains a General Statement of Terms and Conditions (the "General Statement") which is contractual.

The General Statement applies to all FCA employees, including those working for the PSR (employees working for the PSR have FCA contractual terms).

The General Statement includes some contractual terms from the previous edition of the handbook. No new terms have been added and no changes have been made to these terms. Employees who have joined the FCA at different times have different versions of the Personal Statement. Newer versions of the Personal Statement contain provisions which deal with the matters covered in the General Statement.

If there are any inconsistencies between your Personal Statement and the General Statement, the terms of your Personal Statement take precedence. However, if there is an inconsistency or conflict because a term or condition is missing from your Personal Statement, then the relevant term or condition in the General Statement will apply.

SECTION 1 - NON CONTRACTUAL POLICIES

1. PROTECTING YOU, THE FCA AND THE FIRMS WE REGULATE

Our values Deliver in the Public Interest and Act with Integrity are about holding ourselves and others accountable to the highest standards of ethical behaviour. This means approaching difficult situations with an open mind, speaking openly, and raising concerns, even when it is difficult. We also place great importance on clarity, honesty and transparency, both when setting expectations and in communicating decisions. The policies in this section – many of which set expectations for the standards of conduct and behaviour at the FCA – are underpinned by these values.

1.1 Conflict of Interests

The Financial Conduct Authority's (FCA) primary objective is to ensure that relevant markets function well. A key component of that objective is to ensure that consumers have confidence in the markets and that they can trust those that operate within them, from firms to individuals. We need to promote that same confidence in us, as the conduct regulator. To maintain our reputation, we therefore operate a robust conflicts of interest policy, to uphold, and promote, the integrity of our staff and, by extension, the integrity of both the FCA and the Payment Systems Regulator (PSR).

1.1.1 What is a Conflict of Interest?

A potential Conflict of Interests arises when it could be perceived that your actions could be influenced due to your relationships, your access to information, or your personal financial position.

A conflict can be actual or perceived which is why we require staff to disclose a wide range of declarations as there could be a perceived conflict just by being an employee of the FCA/PSR and the information we might have access to.

The overall principles of this policy are that you should:

- (i) Always act with honesty and integrity
- (ii) Be open about the relationships and personal interests that could be seen as influencing your independent judgment
- (iii) Always alert your manager to any actual or perceived conflict of interests and agree with them how they should be managed. Declarations should be made on appointment, as and when they arise throughout the year, when you change role (especially if there are specific requirements), and during the annual attestation process
- (iv) Not seek to make a profit, avoid a loss or seek any other form of advantage for yourself or others by making personal use of information acquired during your duties
- (v) Ensure you do not leave yourself open to (or perceived to be open to) improper influence through the acceptance of gifts and hospitality
- (vi) Not undertake transactions that, by their nature or purpose, could be perceived as inappropriate.

1.1.2 Why is it important to manage actual or potential Conflict of Interests?

Our reputation for impartiality and independence is vital to our effectiveness and the public interest. We must be objective in our decision-making, and our personal interests should never influence our decisions at work. The Conflicts of Interest policy aims to protect staff from allegations, and the perception, of impropriety and maintain the integrity of staff and the reputation of the FCA and PSR. The policy provides guidance to staff to help avoid such allegations and perceptions. In following such guidance, staff can therefore uphold the reputation of the FCA and PSR for integrity and maintaining the highest possible standards.

1.1.3 Who does the policy apply to?

This policy is mandatory for all FCA and PSR colleagues, permanent and fixed term, contractors, agency workers or secondees (if in a role at SLT level). It sets out the FCA's and PSR's approach to managing Conflict of Interests for our employees, and details what action(s) staff need to take to ensure compliance.

1.1.4 What can I do to comply with the policy?

Throughout your time with the FCA or PSR, you will be required to let us know what potential conflicts of interest you have. This starts before you join us. On initial appointment to the FCA or PSR, you will be required to complete a full Conflict of Interests assessment review. This will require disclosure of interests that you hold.

On an ongoing basis you will be required to update that disclosure as and when changes arise, for example if you need to seek permission to deal in shares or similar, or your relationship information changes. In these instances, if you do have a potential conflict that requires a disclosure, and are FCA and PSR staff, you must record it through the portal. If you are a third-party contingent worker or a secondee, and don't have access to the portal, you must record any potential conflicts with your line manager. Your manager will be responsible for recording the decision in line with the FCA's data retention policy until such time as you have access to the portal. For all employees, this information is confidential between you, your line manager and those with a "need to know" including the Conflict of Interests team and the Control Room. For further guidance, please refer to the Guide for Managers.

In addition to any such changes that arise, once a year you will also be required to formally attest that your declarations are up to date (the Annual Attestation process).

Upon resignation from the FCA or PSR, you and your line manager are required to hold discussions to assess whether there are any actual or perceived conflict of interests risks with the work to be undertaken and/or role of the new organisation. Consideration should be given to any decisions to be made, knowledge to be gained or access to relevant information during the duration of your notice period. Leavers are required to fill out the Leavers COI Assessment Form within the Conflict of Interests Portal. It is the line manager's responsibility to ensure the relevant controls are put in place to mitigate any actual or perceived conflicts during the notice period.

If you have any questions relating to an actual or perceived conflict please contact the Conflict of Interests team via ConflictofInterests@fca.org.uk.

1.1.5 Disclosure requirements

The interests that you hold, or relationships that you have, that need to be disclosed on the Conflict of Interests Portal fall into four categories. They are;

1.1.6 Permission requirements

The following activities require permission to be obtained from your line manager and/or the Ethics Officer as indicated. Permission should be obtained through the COI Portal and the decision, regardless of the outcome, should be recorded on the portal.

Exclusive Employment

Whilst working for the FCA or PSR you are not permitted to undertake any form of work (paid or unpaid) for any other organisation without written approval in advance from your Head of Department or, in the absence of a Head of Department, your Director. For SLT members, you will need to gain approval from your line manager. The written approval must be uploaded on your Decisions Log page on the Conflict of Interests Portal.

These restrictions relate to any positions at another organisation for which you intend to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • be employed or be contracted;
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • freelance whether in a casual or part-time capacity;
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • run or campaign for, or hold, a national or local elected public office position, including as a local councillor; or

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • be a trustee or director.

Personal Financial Transactions

You are required to seek permission before entering certain personal financial transactions ('dealing'²). You must not deal or begin the process of dealing before approval has been given. Once permission has been granted, you are free to deal, but you must do so within 2 working days. If the trade has not taken place within this period you must advise your manager that the transaction has not taken place and, if you still wish to proceed, you must re-apply for permission.

If permission has been obtained and a trade has been undertaken, you should then consider whether you need to update any financial relationship disclosures as per the Disclosure Requirements section.

Once you have undertaken the trade, you must upload a trade confirmation note, also known as a broker note, on the Decision Log of the Conflict of Interests Portal. You must do so as soon as possible and within two weeks of the trade having taken place at the latest.

Transactions that require permission include;

(i) Direct dealings in Securities and Related Investments³ in a Relevant Organisation and organisations carrying out Qualifying Cryptoassets services including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Securities awarded through employee share schemes (if you want to give instruction to sell securities to meet a tax charge incurred on the vesting of the same securities which have been awarded to you through an employee share scheme, or as part of a remuneration package, you are required to seek approval to deal from the Ethics Officer before placing the instruction). • Rights issues of Relevant Organisations that will affect many employees. If a rights issue or similar corporate action by a Relevant Organisation is likely to affect many employees, the Ethics Officer may issue an appropriate policy on the date on which employees will be able to subscribe to the rights issue. If a policy is not issued in relation to a rights issue of a Relevant Organisation, permission to deal should be sought in the usual way. • Dividend Reinvestment Plans (DRIPs). Setting up a DRIP is classed as dealing for the purposes of the Conflict of Interests Policy. In line with the prohibition on acquiring Securities and Related Investments in regulated firms, it is prohibited to set up a DRIP with a regulated firm and any existing DRIPs should be cancelled. • DRIPs in non-regulated or non-financial services firms are permitted but you must follow the permission process. You must inform your line manager that you are planning to set up such a plan whilst seeking approval • Acquiring Securities and Related Investments (in a regulated firm) by way of Gifts or Inheritance. If you acquire these in circumstances beyond your control, you must request permission to obtain these investments from your line manager and the Ethics Officer. • Treasury Gilts
(ii) Direct dealings in Qualifying Cryptoassets
(iii) Any other financial transaction that could be seen to be sensitive. This includes but is not limited to engaging with firms where you know of a breach in the regulatory requirements or potential enforcement action by the FCA or PSR

1.1.7 Restricted activities

Certain activities are prohibited, meaning that the FCA and PSR staff should ensure that they refrain from taking those actions.

Political Bias

As an FCA/PSR employee you are required to be strictly politically impartial in the way in which you carry out work for the FCA/PSR. You must not engage in the following activities whilst carrying out the FCA/PSR's work:

• saying anything that suggests or implies that the FCA or PSR supports a political group or holds a particular political viewpoint;
• political campaigning;
• engaging in political activity while working, or using FCA premises, systems or resources;
• wearing or displaying political symbols, e.g. badges or t-shirts with political slogans;
• attempting to influence others into holding a political opinion or trying to engage them in political activity;
• holding organised meetings with other employees with the specific intention of discussing political view points;
• inviting politicians, political figures or lobbyists to speak at FCA or PSR events without approval from the Communications Division;
• expressing political views to other parties such as consumers, firms or stakeholders, whether verbally, by email or in writing.

Employees are, however, free to engage in political activity outside work, provided that:

- any activity is carried out in your own time
- you make clear that your involvement is solely in a personal capacity, you do not publicise that you work for the FCA or PSR, and take care to avoid any suggestion that the FCA or PSR supports or endorses a political opinion and ensure that personal views you share cannot be interpreted as compromising the FCA/PSR's political impartiality, as referenced in the Social Media Policy
- you comply with the 'Exclusive Employment' provision if applicable.

Personal Financial Transactions

The personal financial transaction requirements apply to:

- (i) your own financial transactions
- (ii) any financial transactions for another individual or organisation you direct or advise on, including when acting as an executor, trustee, director, shareholder or under a power of attorney

Dealing requests to sell securities held less than 6 months will be refused.

Employees are prohibited from engaging in:

(i) Dealing in Securities or Related Investments, Qualifying Cryptoassets, or any other product where you have inside information.
(ii) Dealing or actively managing Securities or Related Investments in any FCA or PSR regulated firms or their financial holding companies. If you join the FCA/PSR with such holdings, you may be able to retain them, exercise rights arising from them or sell them, but you may not acquire more or actively manage them. You must always declare your holdings as financial relationships. If you exercise your rights from your prior holdings or wish to sell these securities, you must obtain permission for a personal financial transaction from your line manager and the Ethics Officer.
(iii) Speculative transactions (e.g. transactions motivated by a desire to make quick profits) in any financial assets.
(iv) Contract for differences (CFD). This includes 'spread betting' in UK company securities (single equity/vanilla CFDs), UK indices/sectors or the UK equity market. However, you can invest in a fund of CFDs where full discretion is given to the fund manager. You are prohibited from engaging in wagering contracts and fixed-odds bets on UK companies or equities, including indices/sectors and the UK equity market. Examples of what is not acceptable include: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• a spread bet that the FTSE 100 will go up or down• placing a bet that equity X will go up or down in value

1.1.8 Gifts, prizes and hospitality and the link to bribery

While working for us, you may develop contacts with external parties. It is important for our employees to know the industries and stakeholders with which we interact, so we encourage networking to improve stakeholder relations. This may involve the giving and receiving of hospitality, and occasionally, we may be offered gifts.

As a public body, we must observe high standards of ethical behaviour. When following the rules, common sense needs to apply about whether gifts or hospitality should be accepted. We should also consider the cumulative effects of gifts and hospitality on individuals or areas. If acceptance of gifts and hospitality were challenged, it would be necessary to show that acceptance was lawful, appropriate, and consistent with our rules and that personal judgment or integrity had not been compromised.

UK legislation on bribery applies to all employees. Under the Bribery Act 2010, it is an offence for any of our employees to offer, promise or give a bribe to another person, or to request, agree to receive or accept a bribe from another person, and individuals may be subject to prosecution.

You must disclose on the Conflicts Portal as soon as possible the receipt of any gifts, prizes, or hospitality but in any event within 48 hours.

Receiving Gifts

The presentation of gifts should be discouraged where possible. However, where refusal would cause offence or embarrassment, the following rules apply:

Value of gift	Record on	Surrender
Token value	No	No
RRP less than £30	Yes	No
RRP of £30 or more	Yes	Yes
Monetary gifts/ vouchers	Yes	Yes

If you are invited to speak at a dinner or conference, it should be made clear that no payment is expected or required.

Prizes

In general, if you win a prize and its related to your work at the FCA/PSR this may be indistinguishable from a gift and could be perceived as a bribe. The prize must be recorded in the Conflict of Interests Portal. Prizes with an RRP of £30 or more must be recorded and surrendered.

Receiving Hospitality

It is important that the FCA/PSR can defend itself against any suggestions of undue influence or inappropriate behaviour. Interaction with regulated firms, professional advisers, and other organisations, including suppliers or potential suppliers, is an important part of the FCA's/PSR's work. Offers of hospitality may be accepted or made where they are necessary to develop relationships and maintain outside contacts relevant to work. However, if a hospitality offer is excessively expensive or exclusive, there is an increased risk that it will put you or the FCA /PSR into disrepute, and it must be approved by your Director or member of the executive committee⁴ before you can accept. For the avoidance of doubt, this includes, but is not limited to, offers of free places at conferences, and/or invitations to attend overseas locations at the expense of a third party.

The policy includes guidance but does not attempt to cover every situation and must be interpreted by applying common sense to the circumstances of each case.

Type of hospitality	Venue	Permissible (if not exclusive or expensive)	Record in Conflict of Interests Portal

Working breakfast or lunch	FCA/PSR premises or any third party's office	Yes	No
Working breakfast or lunch	Restaurant or other venue away from office premises	Yes	Yes
Drinks reception or similar networking opportunity	Any venue at or away from office premises	Yes	Yes
An evening meal	Any venue at or away from office premises	Yes	Yes
Free conference places (where not speaking)	Any venue	Yes – Director approval UK; ED approval International	Yes

Examples of what constitutes excessive, exclusive, or expensive hospitality includes invitations to expensive/exclusive cultural or sporting events, or even over-frequent invitations from a supplier to individuals or teams at the FCA/PSR. Directors or members of the executive committee may authorise acceptance of hospitality which could be regarded as exclusive or expensive if, in their judgement they consider it appropriate.

While making overseas visits, you may be offered hospitality that would be viewed as exclusive or expensive under normal circumstances. However, it may be appropriate to accept hospitality where refusal would cause offence or embarrassment. Such hospitality should be approved retrospectively by your Director or member of the executive committee and recorded in the Conflict of Interests Portal. Similarly, local customs may favour the giving and/or receiving of gifts. If this situation is likely, you should take appropriate advice, agree in advance what would be acceptable with your Director or member of the executive committee as well as the Ethics Officer and record it in the Conflict of Interests Portal.

If it has been agreed that you can accept an invitation to give a speech, then it is acceptable for a third party to meet some or all the travel and/or accommodation costs. This applies whether you would normally be attending the event as a delegate. However, this must be authorised in advance by the relevant Director or member of the executive committee. Any additional free spaces at a conference must be approved by a minimum of a director level, and minimum of a member of the Executive Committee if overseas.

1.1.9 Giving gifts and hospitality

You should exercise caution when giving gifts (except 'token' gifts) and hospitality to third parties. However, if it is required, the following principles should be applied:

- (i) gift-giving and hospitality must be authorised in advance by the relevant divisional Director or member of the executive committee and must be recorded in the Conflict of Interests Portal
- (ii) in determining whether gift-giving is appropriate, the recipient, the value of the gift and the reason for it should be considered
- (iii) hospitality given should comply with the travel and expenses policy

1.1.10 Bribery and corruption

Bribery is defined as offering, promising, giving or accepting any financial or other advantage to induce the recipient or any other person to act improperly in the performance of their functions, or to reward them for acting improperly or where the recipient would act improperly by accepting the advantage. Corruption is the abuse of entrusted power or position for private gain.

An advantage can include money, gifts, loans, fees, hospitality, entertainment, expenses, services, discounts, the award of a contract or anything else of value, including a favourable regulatory decision and/or any decision relating to any potential or actual investigation.

You must never:

- (i) give, promise to give or offer any payment, gift, hospitality, or other benefit in expectation that an advantage will be received in return
- (ii) accept any offer from a third party that you know, or suspect was made with the expectation that we will provide an advantage for them or anyone else
- (iii) do anything, directly or indirectly, which may suggest to a third party that they could receive an advantage in return for an offer of any payment, gift, hospitality, or other benefit
- (iv) give or accept any gift or hospitality during any commercial negotiations or tender process if this could be perceived as intended or likely to influence the outcome
- (v) give or offer any payment (sometimes called a 'facilitation payment') to a government official, regulator, law enforcement agency or other authority in any country to facilitate or speed up a routine or necessary procedure, including, but not limited to, the processing of visas, the provision of information and cooperation in any potential or actual investigation or proceedings.

1.1.11 What are the consequences of not complying with the policy?

This policy is mandatory for all FCA and PSR colleagues, permanent and fixed term, contractors, agency workers or secondees (if in a role at SLT level). Not meeting the policy requirements or not implementing appropriately the policy controls outside of an agreed Exception to Policy is a breach of this policy and may result in formal action under the disciplinary procedure of the FCA/PSR.

Any identified incidents of breaches should be reported to the Conflict of Interests team and escalated to the Ethics Officer. The severity will be assessed, and further action will be considered on a case-by-case basis. This may include further escalation, working with HR as required.

Breaches include:

- Failure to fully comply with Annual Attestation
- Failure to comply with disclosure requirements
- Failure to comply with the Investment Dealing process
- Failure to comply with Gift and Hospitality requirements
- Failure to otherwise comply with the Policy

Failure to adhere to the requirements set out in this Policy may result in formal action under the Disciplinary Procedure, including, where appropriate, dismissal.

1.1.13 Policy definitions

The table below includes all the defined terms used in this Policy document.

Defined term	Description
Close Family Member	Any close family members (examples include, but are not limited to, spouse/partner, parents, siblings, children).
Close Personal Relationship	A connection with an individual or organisation may be deemed as a 'Close Personal Relationship' if it causes, or can be perceived as, a conflict of interest. These are usually relationships that are held socially outside of a professional environment. An example may include relationships with journalists, MPs, a flatmate who works in a regulated entity, friends, extended family, and partners not considered as 'Close Family Members'
Dealing	Includes purchases, sales, subscriptions, acceptance of takeover or other offers and all other acquisitions or disposals of securities and related investments, or any rights or interests in securities and related investments. Entering into any contract to secure a profit or avoid a loss by reference to fluctuations in securities' price; the acquisition, disposal, or exercise of any option or other right or obligation to acquire or dispose of securities or, in all cases, an irrevocable instruction to do so. Off-market dealings and transfers of securities as gifts are all examples of dealing.

Hospitality	Invitations to attend an event (including sporting and cultural events), or other similar occasion with someone who works for or represents a Relevant Organisation, a professional adviser of a Relevant Organisation or an actual or potential supplier where you can be perceived to be representing the FCA or PSR. This includes any invitation, including attendance with partners/spouses or friends, for example.
Relevant Organisation	A Relevant Organisation is a company, or any company within the same group of companies, that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • is, or is seeking to be, listed on the London Stock Exchange, or is otherwise publicly traded and/or quoted in the UK • is regulated in the UK by the FCA, including those companies subject to supervision, monitoring, and/or enforcement work • is regulated by the PSR, including those companies subject to directions, monitoring, or enforcement work • any other firm subject to an investigation by the FCA or the PSR under the Competition Act 1998 Where a company is listed or otherwise publicly traded in more than 1 country, and 1 of those countries is the UK, the company is still considered a Relevant Organisation. Relevant Organisations also include payment-systems operators (cards and interbank), payment-service providers, infrastructure providers and businesses that rely on these systems.
Securities and related investments	Includes shares (as well as individual company shares held in single company PEPS, ISAs, or other wrappers), bonds, debentures, and any other financial investments, including debt instruments, futures, options, and other financial derivatives. If you are in doubt about whether a financial or investment product is covered by the policy, please consult the Conflict of Interests team.
Sensitive	Includes firms that have acquired a profile that causes additional challenges for the FCA in supervision, enforcement, or engagement matters.
Qualifying cryptoasset	"Cryptoasset" means any cryptographically secured digital representation of value or contractual rights that— (a) can be transferred, stored, or traded electronically, and (b) that uses technology supporting the recording or storage of data (which may include distributed ledger technology). An example of a 'electronically held asset' (i.e. has value or a right attached to it) can be bitcoin, ether, tether, non-fungible tokens.

1.2 Circumstances affecting employment

Employment of relatives or other individuals with whom there is a close relationship

There is nothing to prevent your relatives or anyone else that you have a close relationship with from working at the FCA. But it is your responsibility as an employee to ensure that this person informs the FCA of the relationship when they complete the application, and you inform your line manager who can help you manage any potential conflicts.

If you start a relationship with another employee during the course of your employment, you should inform your line manager or, if the relationship is with your line manager, you should inform their manager.

The FCA will make every effort to ensure that no conflict of interest arises. We do not normally allow employees who have a close relationship to work together in the same team or report to the same line manager.

Changes in personal circumstances

We need to keep accurate records of key information on all employees. To meet our statutory duties, we need to know of any changes in your personal circumstances, which affect or could potentially affect your employment with the FCA. So it is essential that you record any changes such as your home address, telephone number, marital status and who to contact in the event of an emergency on Workday.

You must tell your line manager of changes in your health so that, if necessary, we can comply with our statutory obligations to make reasonable adjustments to enable you to continue working.

You must also inform your line manager and the HR Helpline, within a reasonable period of time, if you are personally affected by, or involved in any of the following:

- (i) You are charged with or convicted of any criminal offence, which includes being disqualified from driving or receiving a formal police caution. You do not have to inform us of minor traffic offences.
- (ii) You are involved in civil litigation in any capacity other than as a witness.
- (iii) You are experiencing financial difficulties and/or have: filed for bankruptcy, individual voluntary arrangements, debt management plans, debt relief orders, or have County Court Judgements made against you.

The FCA will treat all the above information in strictest confidence. However, we may inform your Director/Head of Department when it is necessary and reasonable to do so.

The FCA has legal obligations to fulfil as both an employer and the financial services regulator. If we become aware, either through one of our checks or because you tell us, that you are affected by any of points (i) to (iii) above, we may need to reassess your suitability for continued employment with the FCA. If we have to undertake such an assessment, we will consider:

- the principles of the Fit and Proper Test for Approved Persons
- the level of risk to the FCA's reputation if you were to remain in your current role and/or function
- the level of risk to the FCA's reputation if you were to undertake a different role at the FCA and
- whether you disclosed your situation voluntarily.

The outcome of this assessment may result in:

- moving you to another role within the FCA where the level of risk is removed or reduced
- disciplinary action against you, which may result in your dismissal (see the Disciplinary Procedure)

We know that being involved in any of these situations can be a very worrying time. If you feel you would like to discuss your situation confidentially, the FCA's free counselling advice service is available 24/7. Alternatively contact the HR Helpline or your line manager.

1.3 Information and systems acceptable use policy

Context

It is essential that we use our information and related systems appropriately and legally. We must safeguard the information we are entrusted with, account for our actions and comply with defined rules to ensure we operate securely as an effective Regulator in the public interest. We expect everyone to act with integrity and demonstrate the key behaviours defined within this policy to reduce the risk of losing or compromising our information. In doing so, we expect everyone to be diligent and use reasonable professional judgement when handling information and using the technology provided. Failure to comply with this policy could result in you and the FCA/PSR being exposed to greater risks. You remain accountable for all actions performed on FCA/PSR systems using the accounts provided to you, so it is important that you protect yourself and the FCA/PSR.

Purpose

This policy sets out the FCA's/PSR's key requirements for employees to reduce the risk of the loss or compromise of our information. The Policy is structured across 7 expected behaviours, and each supports the FCA's/PSR's business objectives.

- Be Organised – Manage information correctly
- Be Proportionate - Gather and use information ethically and within the law
- Be Careful - Think before you click, stay safe online
- Be Discreet - Outside the office and on-line
- Be Clear - Clear desk, clear screen, clear bag
- Be Secure – Protect information, passwords and equipment
- Be Alert - See it, suspect it, report it

Scope

This policy is mandatory for everyone (including all employees, contractors and contingent workers as identified under the Security & Vetting Framework, collectively referred to as colleagues) of all FCA legal entities and third parties processing information on behalf of the FCA/PSR and forms part of the FCA/PSR mandatory training requirement that must be attested to each year. While it is designed to cover the most important expected behaviours, it will not include everything. If you find a specific scenario is not covered or further clarification is required, you should refer to other associated policies, standards and guidance, ask your line manager, your local Do No Harm Ambassador or contact the Policy Owner, Cyber & Information Resilience, via the Do No Harm mailbox.

1.3.1 Be Organised - manage information correctly

The FCA and PSR are increasingly reliant on our ability to fully harness and exploit the data and information we receive, create and manage. It is vital that the information we hold is readily available to those individuals that have a legitimate need, is searchable and discoverable to ensure that we can fulfil our obligations including disclosure and is retained for an appropriate period.

You must

- Classify and mark all information as defined by the FCA/PSR Classification scheme. This includes reviewing existing classifications when documents are updated.
- Handle information in accordance with its classification. Please refer to the FCA Information Classification and Handling Guide, PSR Information Classification and Handling guide, associated standards and local guidance for further details.
- Adhere to any additional requirements specifically set out by your local business area and the FCA's FCA's Information Management policy.
- Ensure information identified as being an FCA business record is retained within approved network repositories (such as SharePoint, or case management system such as Intact), which can maintain version control, auditability and search capabilities.
- Further information on what constitutes an FCA business record, can be within our records management guidance.
- Dispose of information when no longer needed in line with the FCA records retention schedule, PSR records retention schedule and Data Destruction & Equipment Disposal standard

You must not

- Access information without a legitimate business need.
- Keep information longer than is necessary – refer to the the FCA records retention schedule, PSR records retention schedule
- Use systems such as OneNote, OneDrive and Outlook for retaining formal business records. This includes draft versions of documents shared and updated by other colleagues to form the master record and/or the basis of formal decisions. Only FCA/PSR approved records repositories should be used to store records. For further information on the use of OneNote and OneDrive, please refer to the OneDrive guidance document.
- Create unique paper records if a suitable digital solution is available.

1.3.2 What is the harm?

We are expected to hold ourselves to the highest standards and meet all relevant regulation. We have obligations to disclose material in criminal, regulatory and civil proceedings. Failure to fulfil those obligations can result in us not being able to take action against those who have committed criminal offences or other forms of misconduct.

We are subject to Freedom of Information requests and other legal and regulatory requirements and must be able to find and disclose information in a timely and cost-efficient way. If we do not meet these standards, then we may be challenged by the Information Commissioner's Office and other bodies such as, but not limited to Parliament and the Upper Tribunal.

1.3.3 Be Proportionate - gather and use information ethically and within the law

We manage a wide range of information, including personal data under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and the Data Protection Act (DPA) 2018, there are a number of legal requirements governing how we handle personal data. The FCA and PSR takes safeguarding personal data extremely seriously and implications of non-compliance can be severe. When you are working with personal data:

You must

- Only collect, access, use and share personal data where there is lawful basis to do so.
- Consider privacy risks and engage with C&IR to conduct a Data Protection Impact Assessment (DPIA) when considering new or making changes to an existing processing activity.
- Ensure that the volume and type of data collected is proportionate to the business need.
- Immediately refer any individual rights requests (access, erase, remove) to the Information Disclosure Team, as this will enable the FCA/PSR to comply with the request within statutory time scales.
- Remove or obfuscate any personal data (by anonymising or pseudonymising), prior to sharing or publishing information, , unless there is a lawful basis that permits sharing and / or publication without such action being taken.
- Immediately report any suspected loss or breach of information or asset, by contacting the FCA Security Control Room on 0207 066 3838 and completing the Loss Reporting e-Form in accordance with published guidance.
- Refer to the FCA's/PSR's Data Privacy Policy and Procedure for further guidance.

You must not

- Process any personal data unnecessarily. Commence any new collection or new processing of personal data until you have sought advice from C&IR.
- Delay in referring individual rights requests or queries.
- Transfer personal data to another jurisdiction without following the Data Residency & Access Standard.
- Publish or share data without permission, without justifiable lawful basis and without conducting appropriate checks to remove any personal identifying information.
- Delay in reporting suspected loss or breach of information or asset.

What is the harm?

Mishandling personal data results in increased likelihood of potential harm to individuals leading to legal action, financial loss and reputational risk for the FCA and/or the PSR, alongside potential employee disciplinary proceedings. It is important that you understand your personal obligations in relation to data protection and recognise the need of being proportionate and transparent in its use.

1.3.4 Be Careful - think before you click/stay safe online

We need to maintain our awareness of threats exploiting core communication channels such as email and the Internet. Our security controls go some way to protect the Organisation but we expect you to remain vigilant to these threats, and to take time and care when using services such as email and the Internet. You need to question or seek advice if you are ever unsure.

The FCA and PSR allow limited personal use of the provided communication systems, so we expect you to apply diligence and good judgement when using these facilities both for personal and business use. The FCA undertakes ethical phishing testing to test its defences against common phishing attacks. Colleagues should be aware that clicking on simulated phishing emails results in inclusion within the phishing support process. Further detail can be found here.

You must

- Be vigilant for malicious emails such as 'phishing', messages, calls or other suspicious communications that might seek unauthorised access to information or undermine the security of our IT systems. Immediately report any suspected issues using the 'Report Phishing' button within Outlook or via Phishing@fca.org.uk
- Exercise caution when clicking on links or accessing websites and immediately report to the IT Service Desk and complete the Loss Reporting e-Form if you believe you have clicked on or opened malicious content.
- Contact the IS Service Desk immediately if our anti-virus software raises any alerts.
- Seek guidance from your line manager if you are unsure of the legitimacy of a request for information. If in doubt, this should be reported immediately via Phishing@fca.org.uk and to the C&IR Counter Threat Unit.
- Report the receipt of inappropriate material to your Line Manager.
- Transmit and transport information in accordance with the FCA Information Classification and Handling Guide and the PSR Information Classification and Handling guide

You must not

- Send any FCA/PSR information to your personal email address (excluding your own personal information such as personal training certificates, your CV and remuneration details), any email address not directly connected with the work being completed / related to the information or auto-forward any FCA/PSR emails to external addresses.
- Upload FCA/PSR data to any unapproved third-party repository or internet site including any query sites such as search engines, translation sites or AI /chatbot solutions e.g. ChatGPT.
- Access internet sites (including social media) containing or promoting inappropriate material including, but not limited to, sexually explicit content, the promotion of terrorism, illegal activities, defamatory material etc. Or that allow unlawful access to copyrighted or licensed material when using FCA equipment or services including Wi-Fi.
- Download unapproved software (including screen savers and games) to your FCA/PSR device. Refer to the IS Service Desk for further support.
- Share your passwords or store them insecurely.
- Use your FCA/PSR phone to make personal calls overseas.

1.3.5 What is the harm?

Cyber security threats continue to grow as rapidly as the development of new technologies. A large proportion of successful cyber-attacks originate from someone clicking on a malicious phishing (or scam) email. The consequences of a successful cyber-attack can be far reaching and impact our ability to operate and can have long lasting damaging consequences to our reputation.

1.3.6 Be Discreet - outside the office and on-line

New digital technologies improve our efficiency and ability to collaborate, but it is important to incorporate diligent and secure working practices, using the most appropriate methods when communicating information.

You must

- Verify the participants and restrict access when required, on audio and video calls when discussing any FCA/PSR information.
- Ensure you only share information with authorised parties when using collaboration tools such as Teams, OneDrive, Salesforce and Chatter.
- Consider your environment and how you may be overlooked in a public space before reading or working on FCA/PSR information. Position yourself to ensure you cannot be 'shoulder surfed' by unauthorised parties and, in addition, use a privacy filter where possible.
- Avoid including FCA/PSR Sensitive and FCA/PSR Secret information within the subject line and first line of a message, reducing the impact of how this type of information can be first viewed (or 'popped up') on the recipient's screen.
- Seek approval before travelling overseas with FCA/PSR equipment. Further guidance can be found the Travel Safety Site.
- Ensure your conduct on social media does not bring the FCA/PSR into disrepute or conflict. Further guidelines can be found via Internal Communications.

You must not

- Use instant messaging or other such solutions for transmitting items of record or formal decisions. Instant messaging is an informal medium and cannot be relied upon to provide auditability for formal instruction.
- Write or share content which is inappropriate, illegal, discriminatory or otherwise offensive.
- Work on information classified as FCA/PSR Official and above in a public space where it could be seen easily by unauthorised parties.
- Refer to or post any information relating to the FCA/PSR on social media not already in the public domain without first receiving formal approval from the Communications Department as detailed within the FCA Employee Handbook.
- Choose answers to security validation questions from information that is readily available on social media.

What is the harm?

Failure to work in a secure way can lead to information being leaked or compromised. There is a heightened risk when working in a public space when work related conversations can be overheard or when information is overlooked. This can also lead to an increased risk to your personal safety if your equipment and information is targeted by thieves.

1.3.7 Be Clear - Clear desk, clear screen, clear bag

Our desk and workspaces provide valuable shared resources and they need to be made available to other colleagues at the start of every day. Clear desk requirements form part of this policy and you must ensure your working practices are considered and information is suitably protected at all times, this extends to periods when you may be working remotely.

When a desk is vacated for the day, you must ensure that information is not left available and all items (including both personal and work-related items) are removed and secured.

You must

- Remove information, equipment and all personal items from desks, meeting rooms, break-out areas and other communal areas at the end of meetings and at the end of each day. Additionally, consider how you maintain clear desk principles when working remotely e.g., from home or outside the office.
- Ensure that information is securely stored in a locked cabinet or equivalent when not in use for a prolonged period of time both in the office and when at home. Ensure any default locker pins are set to a chosen personal code.
- Lock computer screens prior to leaving them unattended (e.g., using the  L keys).
- Use FCA/PSR printing facilities only (unless specifically authorised via the approved and published process) and minimise the printing of documents where practicable. Use information in digital form whenever possible.
- Consider the need to remove papers from the office including personal notebooks. Ensure you have business and line manager support to justify taking papers outside of the office – whenever possible you should utilise more secure digital options. Remove information, equipment and all personal items from desks, meeting rooms, break-out areas and other communal areas at the end of meetings and at the end of each day.

You must not

- Leave any FCA/PSR equipment or papers, or any personal items, on your desk or surrounding area at the end of the working day.
Note: Items may be removed during evening security checks and the FCA/PSR accepts no liability for the loss of or damage to any of your personal property.
- Leave FCA/PSR Sensitive or FCA/PSR Secret printed information unattended on desks or not collected from communal or printer areas.
- Take printed papers outside of the FCA/PSR office unless you have an approved material business need and you have discounted alternative secure digital options.
- Dispose of FCA/PSR papers in domestic waste.

What is the harm?

Securing information in paper form presents a bigger challenge given the limitation of manual controls needed to prevent information falling into the wrong hands. The loss or compromise of papers has the potential for information leaks and harm to the firms we regulate and loss of public confidence. Equally, unauthorised access to your hybrid (if left unattended and unlocked) could lead to unauthorised activities being undertaken using your credentials.

1.3.8 Be Secure - Protect information, passwords and equipment

It is essential that you integrate security controls in your day to day working habits to protect information, systems and related equipment such as laptops, hybrids, and smart phones. You need to remember the value of these assets and employ the right working practices to help protect them. For instance, any confidential information that we have received from a firm is protected under section 348 of the Financial Services and Market Act 2000 (FSMA) and or the Financial Services Banking Reform Act (FSBRA) 2013, so we have an obligation to ensure we manage this information correctly.

You must

- Take all reasonable precautions to ensure FCA/PSR equipment and information is protected from theft or loss.
- Only store and process information on approved systems and cloud services.
- Only use FCA/PSR approved and supplied messaging systems to transmit / receive FCA/PSR Information. Text messaging and services such as WhatsApp must only be used for maintaining staff contact or as part of an approved Business Continuity Process when all other forms of approved communication are down e.g., in the event of a complete loss of all FCA/PSR systems.
- Only use FCA/PSR supplied / approved audio conferencing and/or video conference facilities to communicate information.
- Ensure you adopt strong passwords that cannot be easily guessed and change your password immediately if you believe it has been compromised in line with the User Access Management standard.
- Ensure credentials such as passwords are kept securely and never written down. Consider using the FCA's approved password "wallet" (Password Safe) for the storage/management of passwords in a protected (encrypted) format.
- If using the FCA/PSR 'Bring Your Own Device' solution, comply with any applicable Terms and Conditions – note the FCA/PSR has the right for data contained only within the BYOD application to be wiped in the event of the device being lost or stolen.
- Only use your FCA/PSR credentials to log into FCA supplied / approved services and systems.

You must not

- Use non-FCA/PSR voicemail or text messaging systems to communicate FCA/PSR Sensitive & FCA/PSR Secret information.
- Share your passwords with anyone (including line managers, Professional Business Support colleagues, IT support staff or family members). Refer to the Passwords and Delegated Access Guidance for information delegating permissions within FCA/PSR systems.
- Use FCA/PSR user credentials or FCA/PSR email addresses for personal use, such as personal social media accounts or online shopping.
- Use personal equipment (laptops, phones etc.) to store or process FCA/PSR information of any category unless through an approved BYOD solution.
- Disable or attempt to bypass security controls (such as anti-virus software or firewalls) or attempt to use alternative ways to access blocked websites, content or services.
- Connect unauthorised devices to the FCA/PSR corporate network.
- Connect or use any removable media such as memory sticks from an unknown or untrusted source.

What is the harm?

Incorrect security practices reduce our ability to meet our obligations to secure and manage information correctly. The misuse of fundamental security measures such as passwords undermines the systems and controls employed to protect our information. This can result in the loss of, or damage to FCA/PSR equipment, IT services and the loss and compromise of information leading to potential harm to consumers, firms and loss of public confidence.

1.3.9 Be Alert - See it, suspect it, report it

You have a responsibility to remain alert and report any actual or suspected security threat, for example the loss or theft of information or equipment, a suspected or known external cyber-attack or compromise of your log-in credentials. Fast and diligent reporting can help reduce the impact of an incident and can assist in implementing additional controls to contain it. If in any doubt, escalate immediately.

You must

- Immediately report any suspected or actual information security incidents, data privacy incidents, suspected weakness, non-compliances or near misses in line with the FCA Incident Reporting Standard.
- Report all known or suspected incidents using the Lost/Stolen reporting process or telephone the Security Control Room telephone helpline (0207 066 2222 – full contact details can be found on your Emergency & Incident Card).
- Report incidents if you observe any wrongdoing relating to the requirements contained within this policy. Please ask your Line Manager or contact the Cyber & Information Resilience Team if you have any concerns.

You must not

- Knowingly ignore or disregard any form of security incident or possible breach.
- Delay reporting an incident even if the incident is discovered outside of office hours.
- Investigate an incident in an unlawful manner, which could damage evidence, jeopardise the successful outcome of an investigation or breach an individual's rights.

What is the harm?

It is inevitable that incidents will occur. Recognising a problem and acting upon it quickly will provide us with the best opportunity to manage it effectively and reduce the potential harm to an individual, firm or impact to the FCA/PSR. In some instances (such as loss or compromise of personal data) we have an obligation to report incidents quickly to regulators, law enforcement and other external parties. The Information Commissioner has the power to serve a monetary penalty notice if we do not manage incidents correctly. This could lead to potential long-term damage to our reputation and undermine public confidence.

1.3.10 Training & Awareness

You must complete related Acceptable Use training / required reading within 8 weeks of joining the FCA/PSR and then annually, as part of the mandatory Conflicts of Interest Attestation in line with the FCA/PSR training calendar.

1.3.11 Non-Compliance

The FCA/PSR reserves the right to monitor use of all its information systems in accordance with relevant laws, and for applicable regulatory or business purposes. Information gathered through monitoring may be used, but not limited to, measurement and enforcement of the requirements detailed within this and other FCA/PSR policies.

Any suspected or actual breaches of this policy must be raised in line with published breach management and or incident reporting guidelines as necessary, this includes the need for colleagues to escalate issues through to line management in line with the 3 lines of defence model (3LoD).

Non-compliance with the policy without prior authorisation (breach) may result in formal action under the FCA's Disciplinary Procedure. The FCA/PSR may also ask for your consent to examine your personal mobile device(s) under any such action, where there is a suspected breach of this policy. Such requests would only be made with approval from HR.

Waivers under this policy will only be permitted under exceptional circumstances and must be submitted via the FCA's published exceptions to policy process.

1.3.12 Review and Refresh

This policy forms part of the C&IR Policy Framework as well as belonging to the wider FCA/PSR Tier 1 policy set and as such, it will be managed in line with the FCA Internal Policy Framework guidance. This policy has a mandated minimum annual review period set against it and will be reviewed and approved by the Executive Sponsor by, at the latest, the date published on page 2 of this document. Additionally, updates may be made on a regular basis depending on a business need and the changing risk environment.

1.3.13 Monitoring and Reporting

Policy Compliance is monitored using a wide variety of inputs, such as MI from Key Risk Indicators (KRIs), lessons learned from breach and incident management activities, RCSA outputs, R&CO risk review and Internal Audit findings. As required KRIs are adjusted to ensure MI remains insightful and focussed.

Reporting is provided monthly. In addition, ad-hoc requests from ExCo to provide information on Policy performance and enable effective decision making.

1.4 Employee privacy notice

While you are employed by the FCA, we need to hold, access and / or process personal data about you. We must give you very specific information about how we process your personal data, to ensure that processing is fair and transparent. This information is in our Employee Privacy Notice.

1.5 Security and vetting

We will provide appropriate security arrangements at the FCA to protect the organisation and to provide a safe and secure working environment. To help us achieve this we require you to understand your responsibilities and cooperate with our security arrangements.

Security control

Our premises are protected by specialist security officers and a range of electronic measures. The buildings have an Access Control System to control access to the building and specific facilities. All employees are issued with a security ID pass which you must wear and display at all times when inside the building. Your pass must not be loaned or given to others at any time.

Further details on our physical security arrangements can be found at the Security page on the Intranet.

Your security ID Pass (key fob in Edinburgh) gives you access to FCA premises. We conduct routine audits of the access log for operational security reasons and to work out occupancy rates of the building. We may also run a check of the log in other circumstances. This includes, but is not limited to: emergency situations; a breach or potential breach of security; where we reasonably believe a member of staff is in breach of their contract or another of our rules (for example, in relation to working hours obligations). Such investigations may include cross-references to other logs of information, such as CCTV images, iTime, etc.

Security vetting

All FCA employees undergo pre-employment checks. This gives access to all classifications of FCA information and certain grades of Government-owned Protectively Marked information without further screening (subject, in each case, to having a business need to know the information).

Some posts need additional screening, or access to higher protectively marked materials, subject to National Security Vetting (NVS) standards. The FCA's policy is to undertake national security vetting on a role needs basis. If you are recruited into a job that requires you to be security cleared, your appointment will be conditional upon the appropriate level of clearance being granted and maintained. This applies whether the recruitment is internal or external.

Further information

For more information about security at the FCA, including security relating to keys to office cabinets, and compliance audits and investigations of losses, please refer to the Security pages on the Intranet.

1.6 Anti-money laundering and prevention of terrorist financing

You have a personal responsibility to report knowledge or suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing to the FCA Money Laundering Reporting Officer. This means knowledge or suspicion about a firm or person, gained in the course of your work, which links that firm's or person's financial dealings, or its customers, connected persons, etc., to any criminal conduct or terrorist activities.

The Money Laundering, Terrorist Financing and Transfer of Funds (Information on the Payer) Regulations 2017 create this responsibility and as long as you follow our reporting procedure, you will comply with the law.

1.7 Media, photography, speeches and publications

Media

To help the FCA maintain a consistent line when dealing with press or other media enquiries, all press enquiries must be referred to the Press Office.

If you receive a media enquiry you should not comment on what is being put to you, but politely and firmly refer the journalist to the Press Office. You should also contact the Press Office yourself to inform them of the enquiry.

Only employees in the Press Office and those authorised by the Press Office should speak to the media. You should not contact the media directly.

There are no exceptions to this requirement. Even those authorised to talk to the press (who have received formal training on dealing with journalists) need to contact the Press Office before speaking to journalists. This minimises risk to individual employees as well as the FCA.

Remember that the press may be present when employees are speaking at external conferences or events. Do not say anything you would be embarrassed to see in print, particularly during question and answer sessions.

Photography on FCA premises

There are many departments in the FCA who work with sensitive commercial information. Photography within FCA premises is a potential risk to the security of this information.

Where there is commercial photography or filming inside our premises, the photographer will need authority from the Press Office. Photographers must always be hosted and escorted into the building and must have a specific brief as to what they can and cannot photograph. Security must be notified in advance of any commercial photography within FCA premises.

If you or one of your visitors wish to take photographs inside our premises for personal reasons, this is generally restricted to public areas such as reception. If you wish to take photographs inside office areas, you must seek prior permission from the Corporate Protection and Resilience Department, who will not generally object, but will make certain you are aware that you are restricted from photographing documents, security devices, computers and data rooms.

Please report any photography inside our premises that you are suspicious of or that you believe has not been approved.

Speeches and publications

Any fees received from speeches, articles, attendances at seminars or similar events, in your capacity as an employee, must be given to the FCA. If you are writing or publishing material connected with your work but not commissioned by the FCA, you should seek approval from the Head of Press Office and Events in advance. The publication of confidential information may be considered as gross misconduct and may lead to dismissal.

1.8 Social media

Social media covers platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram, Google+, all blogs, all forums and comments to online articles either on a publication's website or other sites as they develop.

You must email the Executive Assistant to the Director of Communications if you want to use social media in a professional capacity on behalf of the FCA. For example, if you wish to share already publicly available information about the FCA on Twitter, you would need to disclose your account to the Communications Division and gain prior approval.

You may, occasionally, be asked to represent the FCA on a social media. This will be discussed with you and your manager, led by the Communications Division.

You can make reasonable use of social media sites in a personal capacity - but you are responsible for the content you publish in your name and it must not bring the FCA into disrepute.

In your social profiles, you must make it clear that you are expressing a personal view. For example, by using text similar to the following in your profile: 'The views expressed on this site are mine alone and do not reflect the views of my employer'. You should be aware of your duty as an employee, and as associated with your contract of employment, to act in good faith and in the best interests of your employer.

You must not bring the FCA into disrepute through the information, comments and other material you disclose. For example, avoid posting abusive, derogatory or offensive comments, and carefully consider whether any views you share could be interpreted as compromising the FCA's political impartiality.

Excluding LinkedIn, which can be used in a professional capacity, you must not include 'FCA' in any form in your social media profile name or title (unless given permission by the Director of Communications). Staff are allowed to list FCA under the 'Work and Education' section of their personal Facebook profile. However, no additional comments should be made regarding employment at the FCA, as above.

Contact the Press Office and your manager if you are contacted by the media about a comment or post you made on social media that relates to the FCA. In line with the Press Office's Handbook, do not discuss further with a journalist without Press Office permission.

Contact the Editorial & Digital team in the Communications Division if you are approached via social media to comment on FCA business in an official capacity, such as via personal message on LinkedIn or Twitter. Stakeholders wanting official comment or reply from staff members in a professional capacity must contact them through official FCA channels, ie work email address, formal letter or via the Communications Division.

Contact your manager if you are offered payment to produce a blog or other article for a third party which could lead to a conflict of interest.

You must not reveal confidential information about the FCA and its work, or information that relates to a regulated firm. A disclosure of information could lead to claims against the FCA under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 or the General Data Protection Regulations 2018. As per the information classification policy, staff cannot tweet about anything considered to be FCA Restricted, Controlled Distribution or HSI.

You must not engage in public debate on any issue that relates to the FCA without prior authorisation from the press office and your line manager.

You must not criticise the FCA or your colleagues, even if you do not state that you work for the FCA.

Directors, HoDs and Managers are responsible for ensuring that staff are aware of and comply with these policies, and that potential policy breaches are investigated promptly, and dealt with under the FCA's Disciplinary Procedure. If you are unsure speak to your line manager or Director of Communications.

If you are found guilty of breaching the social media policy disciplinary action may be taken against you up to and including dismissal from the FCA in line with the Disciplinary Procedure.

1.9 Internal whistleblowing policy

1.9.1 Background

We are committed to a culture where colleagues feel confident that they can raise concerns and challenge poor practice regardless of any factor, such as seniority or geographical location. We want employees to be assured that their concerns will be listened to, treated fairly, and in confidence. All employees need to understand how this policy affects them because we all have a responsibility to speak up if we think there is potential wrongdoing at work. In line with the organisations' values, all employees should act in the public interest and act with honesty and integrity.

Given the vital role of the FCA and PSR in the Financial Services industry, non-compliance with any legal obligation or internal policies, procedures, and processes could damage public confidence in the FCA or PSR and prevent us from achieving our objectives.

Internal whistleblowing is one important channel for employees to raise concerns. There are other channels that employees can use to speak up that are not internal whistleblowing, as set out in Section 1.9.3.

This Policy aims to provide guidance on which channel should be used when raising concerns, in the knowledge and to reassure employees that they will be taken seriously. The Policy applies to all FCA and PSR employees and to everyone else who works at the FCA or PSR including, but not limited to officers, contractors, consultants, agency workers and interns, whether full or part time, all of whom are referred to collectively as 'employees' in this Internal Whistleblowing Policy.

1.9.2 What types of concerns can I report under this Policy?

There are two types of whistleblowing relevant to our work at the FCA and PSR. External whistleblowing is when we are contacted about the conduct of regulated firms or individuals¹. Internal whistleblowing is when our employees have concerns about potential wrongdoing, malpractice or illegal acts (see later sections for definitions) at the FCA and PSR. This policy applies to internal whistleblowing only and will be referred to as 'the Policy' throughout.

A report that raises concerns is the disclosure of information about potential wrongdoing or malpractice that is in the public interest (generally affecting others) at work. Reports will be assessed to determine whether they meet the criteria of being a reportable concern and if they need to be investigated (see section 1.9.5 for information).

For the purposes of this Policy, a whistleblower is a current or former employee who makes a report that meets the criteria of a reportable concern. Whistleblowers are generally witnesses to a potential wrongdoing and the usual outcome would be that you want your concern investigated.

Any reports made by former employees must relate to their period of employment. We encourage former employees to raise any concerns as soon as possible: the timely disclosure of information from former employees increases the likelihood that such concerns remain relevant to the organisation's present operation. However, if a former employee felt unable to report a concern at the time it occurred, we encourage them to contact the Internal Whistleblowing Team when they are able to.

Under this Policy a reportable concern is a disclosure of information, where an employee has a reasonable belief that is in the public interest (generally affecting others and not just the employee making the report) of potential wrongdoing or malpractice where one or more of the following has been, is being, or is likely to be committed:

- a) A qualifying disclosure
 - (i) a criminal offence
 - (ii) a failure to comply with any legal obligation
 - (iii) a miscarriage of justice
 - (iv) putting the health or safety of any individual in danger
 - (v) damage to the environment; or
 - (vi) deliberate concealment of the above
- b) Breaches of our internal policies and procedures that are in the public interest (generally affecting others and not just the employee making the report) including breaches of our Conflicts of Interests Policy or unauthorised disclosure of confidential information.
- c) Behaviour that harms, or is likely to harm, the public confidence or financial wellbeing of the FCA or PSR.
- d) Any material risks or other dangers at work that are in the public interest and could prevent the FCA or PSR from operating effectively.

A 'qualifying disclosure' is one type of 'reportable concern'. In the list above bullet points b, c, and d go beyond a qualifying disclosure. In law, 'qualifying disclosures' become 'protected disclosures' if made in the way expected by the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998, which is an important piece of legislation for whistleblowers. It is important to note that not all 'reportable concerns' are 'protected disclosures'. This is because 'protected disclosure' has a very distinct meaning under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 and certain legal protections only apply to protected disclosures.

We expect our employees to have a reasonable belief and a logical basis for believing there has been potential wrongdoing. Normally, the potential wrongdoing will affect others as well as yourself, posing a potential organisational risk which, either is occurring, has occurred, or is likely to occur in future.

This Policy cannot cover every eventuality. If in doubt, contact the Internal Whistleblowing Team at internal.whistle@fca.org.uk for guidance. We want everyone to be able to raise concerns they have about potential wrongdoing at work without fear of retaliation.

1.9.3 What types of concerns are not covered by this Policy?

This Policy is one important channel for you to speak up if you have a reasonable belief of potential wrongdoing that generally affects others. If you have a concern about something that affects you personally, or is outside the scope of this Policy, then there are other existing processes that you can use which include:

Policies and procedures relating to raising and resolving concerns about your personal employment matters or how you have been treated by others at work, including your line manager:

- (i) The Equality Complaints Procedure for concerns about unlawful discrimination, bullying, harassment and victimisation.
- (ii) The Grievance Procedure for other employment-related complaints that are not connected to an equality or bullying matter.
- (iii) The Disciplinary Procedure for matters relating to conduct.
- (iv) Relevant appeals Processes. If you are not satisfied with an outcome arising from the Grievance, Equality Complaints, Disciplinary or Performance Management procedures, then you can raise an appeal under the relevant procedure.

Information Security concerns:

- (i) Inappropriate sharing or loss of information is a key risk for the organisation. As part of our work in the FCA or PSR we all have access to significant sensitive information that could be used for illegitimate purposes and personal gain. To contact the team or to report something that doesn't feel right, please email BeAwareReporting@fca.org.uk.

Other feedback channels:

- (i) The Employee Survey is an anonymous way to provide feedback.
- (ii) Staff Representatives. The Staff Representative Group (SRG) is a subcommittee of the Staff Consultative Committee (SCC) who represent their respective constituencies (and the staff as a whole).
- (iii) Employee Networks. Our network groups form an important pillar of our DEI infrastructure at the FCA and PSR. They play an important role in supporting our aims and objectives to become a more diverse, equitable and inclusive workplace.
- (iv) The Facilities Helpdesk. The FCA and PSR are committed to protecting the safety and health of its employees.

1.9.4 How to raise a concern

If you reasonably believe that you have a reportable concern, you can make a report in-person or in writing to your line manager or any member of the Senior Leadership Team. If you have a concern about wrongdoing, we hope you will feel able to raise it first with your manager or a member of the Senior Leadership Team. If for any reason you prefer not to, you can then use one of the other channels below.

- The Internal Whistleblowing Team is the team that investigates reportable concerns and can be contacted via the dedicated mailbox: internal.whistle@fca.org.uk
- The Chief Internal Auditor has overall responsibility for internal whistleblowing who can be contacted by email (internalwhistlecia@fca.org.uk)
- Individuals can also raise reports anonymously in writing to the Chief Internal Auditor, or the Chair of AuditCo (c/o Board Secretariat) using the FCA's address.

If you feel unable to raise a report with any of the above channels you can raise your concern with:

- The Whistleblowers' Champion – the Champion is the Chair of the Audit Committee. You can raise your concern with the Whistleblowers' Champion via their office at email address (internalwhistlechamp@fca.org.uk)
- Chair of the FCA or PSR Board - if you feel unable to raise your concern with the Whistleblowers' Champion, or through the other routes above, you can raise it with the Chair of the FCA or PSR Board via their office at (internalwhistlechair@fca.org.uk or internalwhistlechair@psr.org.uk).

Please note that the Champion and the Chair do not have a day-to-day operational role in handling disclosures from whistleblowers, but you can contact them if necessary. They will acknowledge the disclosure and ensure that appropriate action is taken. See section 1.9.7 for details of raising a report with the Treasury or a prescribed person.

We encourage our employees to make a report at the earliest opportunity, as this can help to ensure a prompt and effective investigation. When raising a report, we encourage you to provide as much detail as possible to enable your report to be considered. The key details to consider are:

- Communicate in an objective, professional and factual manner. A Whistleblowers' obligations are the same as any current or former employees'.
- You should not actively investigate a concern yourself. However, being as accurate and specific as possible about key details will help us to assess the concern and investigate, if required. Where possible include key information such as when the alleged issue took place, how long the concern has been going on for, the breach of legal obligation or risk posed to the organisation, and the parts of the organisation it concerns.

- Confirm if the concern has been reported using another channel, either internally or externally.

We encourage employees to make a report openly or confidentially under this Policy. If you raise your concerns openly, it means you are not worried about being identified. If you raise your concerns confidentially, it means you would like your identity not to be revealed. It is easier for the Internal Whistleblowing Team to assess reports if we have a point of contact. While we accept anonymous reports, which means no one knows who you are, completely anonymous disclosures can be more difficult to investigate.

We may not act on reports that contain insufficient information either to assess against the criteria of a reportable concern or to investigate.

Reports should not be malicious or known to be untrue. 'Malicious' allegations are those concerns raised without foundation with the sole purpose of causing harm or damage. Reports that are malicious may not be considered under this Policy and may also result in disciplinary proceedings.

Whistleblowers should not behave in an unacceptable manner. Examples of vexatious behaviours include concerns raised using abusive or threatening language, unreasonably persistent or repeated concerns on a similar theme, or the unreasonable refusal to accept the outcome of an investigation. Unreasonable or vexatious behaviour when making a report or engaging with the Internal Whistleblowing Team may result in disciplinary proceedings.

Where a whistleblower directly or indirectly puts into the public domain, either (i) the content of a reportable concern in a way that identifies themselves or allows them to be identified as the source, (ii) other information which identifies themselves or allows themselves to be identified as a whistleblower, they may lose the entitlement to confidentiality or anonymity under this policy.

1.9.5 What can I expect when making a report?

All reports, except those that can be resolved by a line manager or member of the Senior Leadership Team, will be assessed by the Internal Whistleblowing team. Each report received by the Internal Whistleblowing Team will be treated in confidence. If you ask us not to disclose your identity, the team will protect your identity and it will only be disclosed on a need-to-know basis to those responsible for investigating the concern. In exceptional circumstances protecting your identity may not be possible. For example,

- if this right is overridden by law;
- if the whistleblower provides consent; or
- if the whistleblower has self-disclosed their identity as a whistleblower to others.

If we are unable to resolve a concern without revealing your identity, for example where your personal evidence is essential, we will discuss with you whether and how the matter can best proceed.

In instances where a whistleblower makes a report directly or escalates to the Whistleblowers' Champion or Chair of the FCA or PSR, they will not investigate themselves and as such, communications may be shared by them with appropriate internal or external expert advisers on a confidential basis.

Once a concern has been raised, the recipient will acknowledge receiving the report. If a report is raised to anyone other than the Internal Whistleblowing Team, it may be necessary for the recipient to share the content of the report with the Internal Whistleblowing Team for assessment.

The Internal Whistleblowing Team will conduct an assessment to determine if the report raised meets the criteria for being a reportable concern and, if so, whether it will be investigated. To inform this assessment, where possible, the employee raising the report will be invited to a confidential meeting. An employee raising a report may be accompanied to any initial or subsequent meetings by a colleague, SCC staff representative or trade union representative, who is not involved in the area of work to which the concern relates to, for support. Those accompanying the employee must respect the confidentiality of the meeting. The name of any companion must be provided in advance, and their attendance is subject to the agreement of the Internal Whistleblowing Team to avoid potential conflicts. The employee making the report may also be invited to attend subsequent meetings, to give them an opportunity to provide further information if appropriate.

Following an assessment of the report made, the Internal Whistleblowing Team will explain why each concern has or has not met the criteria of a reportable concern. Where a report has been assessed as not meeting the criteria, the Internal Whistleblowing Team will advise the individual of the most appropriate channel for raising their concern, where applicable. Where a report has been assessed as meeting the definition of a reportable concern, appropriate and proportionate next steps will be agreed with the Chief Internal Auditor, aligned to the potential severity and time sensitivity of the concerns. Each case is unique. In most cases the Internal Whistleblowing Team or the wider Internal Audit division will investigate the matter directly. The Internal Whistleblowing Team will confirm any next steps. The whistleblower will be provided with a named contact and receive high-level updates as the work progresses.

The role of the investigator is to establish the underlying facts and whether something has gone wrong, and if it has, make recommendations for changes to minimise the risk of recurrence. Internal Audit may engage with appropriate internal or external expert advisers on a confidential 'need to know' basis to conduct a robust investigation into the substance of the matter.

In some circumstances, the Internal Whistleblowing Team may place reliance on the views of external parties, known as 'competent authorities'. Competent authorities may include, but are not limited to, a court of law, a tribunal, or another UK regulatory body. For example, if a whistleblower raised concerns about criminal acts to the Internal Whistleblowing Team and directly to the Police or reported a personal data breach directly to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), it could be appropriate in those instances to accept and place reliance on the decision of those competent authorities.

Depending on the investigation findings, appropriate and proportionate action will be taken to address any issues identified. At the end of an investigation, where possible, the Internal Whistleblowing Team will share as much as it can, and this is usually through verbal feedback. Due to confidentiality obligations to our employees, you may not be provided with the full outcome of an investigation, for example but not restricted to, if disciplinary action is taken. In addition, we will not provide copies of internal confidential documents. The FCA and PSR take internal whistleblowing seriously. We understand that whistleblowers may not always be happy with the outcome. We will invite whistleblowers to provide feedback on the process and we will always seek to deal with any concerns fairly and appropriately. The need for confidentiality, and our duties to our employees, may prevent us from providing specific details about the investigation, including about progress or outcomes.

If a whistleblower is not in agreement with the decision following the assessment of a concern, how an investigation was conducted, or with the outcome of an investigation, they can contact the Whistleblowers' Champion.

The Champion is responsible for the effectiveness of policies and procedures for internal whistleblowing. The Whistleblowing Champion will consider whether a fair process was followed. This may include reviewing assessments, approaches, or outcomes to ensure they were reached in an evidenced, rational, consistent and fair way, in line with this Policy. If the Champion concludes that a fair process was not followed, the Champion could instruct the Team to reconsider the case.

The Champion will not comment on the merits of a case nor reassess allegations or concerns or reinvestigate a case directly. This type of escalation to the Champion is in addition to the right to raise a concern directly with the Champion, as set out in 1.9.4. For more information about raising a concern about an investigation, please see the Roles and Responsibilities section.

1.9.6 Protection and support for whistleblowers

We understand that if you blow the whistle, you may worry about possible repercussions. The Policy is intended to encourage openness and support employees who raise protected disclosures under this Policy. The FCA and PSR will not tolerate retaliation against whistleblowers.

Whistleblowers who have raised protected disclosures under UK law must not suffer 'detriment'. UK law makes it unlawful for an employer to dismiss or subject an employee to a detriment for making a protected disclosure of information (as explained in 1.9.2 not all disclosures made under this Policy are protected).

Detrimental treatment includes dismissal, disciplinary action, threats, or any other unfavourable treatment because of having raised a reportable concern. The term 'detriment' is defined by the Whistleblowing Commission as, "Subjecting the worker to 'any disadvantage' because they blew the whistle. This could include (but is not limited to) any of the following: failure to promote; denial of training; closer monitoring; ostracism or bullying or harassment; blocking access to resources; unrequested reassignment or relocation; demotion, suspension or disciplinary sanction".

If you are a whistleblower and you believe that you have suffered any such detriment as a result of whistleblowing, you should inform the Chief Internal Auditor or the Whistleblowers' Champion immediately.

We take any alleged whistleblowing detriment very seriously. Our employees must not threaten or retaliate against whistleblowers in any way. If any employee is found to be involved in such conduct, they may be subject to disciplinary action.

If you have any questions on the application of the Policy, or are not clear whether something is within the scope of this Policy, you can seek advice from internal.whistle@fca.org.uk or the Chief Internal Auditor. Line managers requiring guidance with respect to internal whistleblowing should contact the Internal Whistleblowing Team. Confidential wellbeing support and counselling is available to employees who raise concerns under this Policy via the Employee Assistance Programme. Further support is also available from Staff Representatives and the Wellbeing Pulse page.

Employees who require independent advice relating to whistleblowing may contact the independent charity – Protect (<https://protect-advice.org.uk>) on 020 3117 2520. Protect gives free and confidential advice on whistleblowing matters.

Other bodies that may be able to provide support are available such as ACAS, Citizens Advice, and unions such as Unite.

1.9.7 Key Roles and Responsibilities

The effectiveness of the Policy requires key stakeholders to fulfil certain responsibilities.

All employees

All employees should complete any training related to internal whistleblowing as and when available. All employees should know when and how they can make reports to raise concerns under this policy.

Whistleblowers

We encourage internal whistleblowers who have reasonable belief to raise concerns about potential wrongdoing or malpractice at the FCA or PSR at the earliest opportunity. Whistleblowers should engage in a manner consistent with the FCA and PSR values, including their responsibility to maintain a confidential process.

Line Managers and members of the Senior Leadership Team

Line managers and the SLT should encourage a positive working culture where individuals feel comfortable raising concerns in accordance with this Policy. Line managers and the SLT should escalate reports, that cannot be resolved in the line to the Internal Whistleblowing Team, whilst protecting the identity and confidentiality of individuals as required. Appropriate levels of confidentiality will apply to all parties involved.

The Internal Whistleblowing Team

The decision about whether a report meets the criteria of a reportable concern sits with the Internal Whistleblowing Team. The team is part of the Internal Audit division. Internal Audit is an independent division reporting to the FCA and PSR's Audit Committee.

The Chief Internal Auditor

The Chief Internal Auditor has overall responsibility for investigating internal whistleblowing reportable concerns. The Chief Internal Auditor will make an annual report, respecting whistleblowers' confidentiality, to the Audit Committee.

The Whistleblowers' Champion

The Whistleblowers' Champion is the Chair of the Audit Committee, who is also an independent non-executive director. The Whistleblowers' Champion has overall responsibility for ensuring and overseeing the integrity, independence, and effectiveness of this Policy as set out in 1.9.5, including procedures for protecting staff who raise concerns under this policy from detrimental treatment. The Champion does not have a day-to-day operational role in handling disclosures from whistleblowers.

The FCA or PSR Chair

If an employee has concerns about how the Whistleblowing Champion has performed their role, they can contact the relevant Chair. The Chair will consider whether a fair process has been followed.

The Treasury

We believe that internal whistleblowers should feel confident raising reports through our internal contacts. Therefore, it should rarely be necessary for whistleblowers to report the matter externally, although we recognise that in some circumstances this may be appropriate.

The FCA is accountable to the Treasury and individuals may disclose their concerns to the nominated Treasury official, who is:

Director General of Financial Services,
HM Treasury, 1 Horse Guards Road,
London SW1A 2HQ.
Tel: 0207 270 4448.

The Treasury is responsible for investigating in whatever way it may consider appropriate, but it is likely to contact the FCA, typically the Chief Internal Auditor, to discuss the disclosure. A report can be raised internally and externally either simultaneously or consecutively. In other words, reporting a matter externally to the Treasury or to other relevant bodies is not conditional on a report first being made using the FCA's internal arrangements. It may however be beneficial to seek advice before raising a concern externally (see details for Protect above in 1.9.6).

The Treasury is also responsible for receiving correspondence from whistleblowers who remain dissatisfied about a whistleblowing matter following the outcome of a complaint raised with the Whistleblowers' Champion. If an Employment Tribunal finds the FCA liable for unfair dismissal or detriment because of whistleblowing, the Whistleblowers' Champion will report the matter to the Treasury.

Prescribed Persons. In addition to the Treasury, our employees could blow the whistle to a prescribed person, which is often another regulator or government department, rather than us (i.e., the FCA or PSR). You should make sure that you choose the correct person or body for your concern.

A list of prescribed persons and their remit can be found at <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/blowing-the-whistle-list-of-prescribed-people-and-bodies--2/whistleblowing-list-of-prescribed-people-and-bodies>

1.9.8 Awareness of and insight from Internal Whistleblowing

Internal Audit encourages awareness of the Policy through different activities which may include training and periodic communications to FCA and PSR employees.

Internal Audit will highlight anonymised themes arising from internal whistleblowing cases to the Executive Committee (ExCo) and the FCA and PSR Audit Committee if and when they arise.

The Audit Committee will review this Policy at least every three years.

We are committed to the continual improvement of our whistleblowing arrangements and will monitor reports and feedback made under this Policy to identify any opportunities for improvement.

1.10 Monitoring

The FCA's systems enable us to monitor email, internet and other communications. To carry out our legal obligations as an employer (such as ensuring compliance with the FCA's policies) and for other business reasons, we may monitor use of systems including telephone and computer systems and any personal use of them, by automated software or otherwise.

Monitoring is only carried out to the extent permitted or as required by law and as necessary and justifiable for business purposes.

1.11 Indemnity policy

To the extent permitted by law, the FCA will indemnify you (provided that you are an employee of the FCA or someone who has been seconded to the FCA or are otherwise acting as a legitimate member of the organisation) against any liability you incur in connection with claims or proceedings brought against you for anything done or not done when working for the FCA. This indemnity applies whether proceedings are brought against you in the UK or overseas. The indemnity will cover any liabilities incurred in connection with such claims or proceedings, including any costs reasonably incurred in defending them, whether or not judgment is given in your favour. If you are seconded or assigned to another organisation while employed by the FCA, we will, wherever appropriate, as a pre-condition of any secondment, either:

- expressly confirm in writing that we will continue to indemnify you in line with the terms of this contract throughout the course of the secondment
- ensure that the organisation you are seconded or assigned to gives you an equivalent indemnity

The indemnity will not extend to any liability incurred by you:

- to the extent that you may be indemnified by any third party including under any policy of insurance for that liability
- as a result of any act or omission which is done or omitted to be done by you dishonestly or otherwise in bad faith or which is outside or inconsistent with the scope of your responsibilities under your Contract of Employment with, or the terms of your secondment to, the FCA

The indemnity is conditional on all of the following requirements. The indemnity will not apply if you fail to comply with them. The conditions are that you:

- do not disclose the existence of this indemnity to any claimant or potential claimant
- inform your manager within the FCA and the FCA Company Secretary in writing as soon as you become aware of any claim or the possibility of a claim against you or the FCA which might give rise to a liability to which this indemnity may apply
- do not discuss the relevant matter with any claimant or potential claimant unless authorised to do so by the FCA
- do not admit liability for yourself or the FCA
- do not try to settle or compromise or reduce or make any payment in respect of the claim or potential claim
- keep the FCA informed of all developments about any claim or potential claim including sending the FCA all documentation relevant to the claim or potential claim as soon as reasonably practicable following receipt
- give the FCA such information, co-operation and assistance as the FCA may reasonably request to enable the FCA to defend the claim or potential claim whether on your behalf or its own

- allow the FCA to conduct the defence of, and settle or compromise on such terms as it considers appropriate, any claim or potential claim
- do not seek outside legal advice except with the authority of the FCA General Counsel or Company Secretary
- inform your line manager within the FCA and the FCA Company Secretary of any discovery of suspicion, fraud or dishonesty by a past or present employee of the FCA or anyone claiming to act on our behalf

This indemnity will apply to any liability arising from any claim or potential claim which you notify to the FCA during your employment (or your secondment) and in the period of 6 years following its termination.

1.12 References policy

Only the HR Division is authorised to provide employment references for existing or ex-employees of the FCA. You must not, in any circumstances, give employment or character references, whether in the FCA's name or otherwise, for existing or ex-employees. All requests for employment and financial references should be directed to the HR Helpline. For the avoidance of doubt, references will not be given for anyone who is or has been engaged by the FCA via a third party organisation.

Subject to the Enhanced references section of this policy below, the FCA is not able to give references for employees who left the organisation more than 10 years ago.

Standard FCA references

All references provided by the HR Division will be in writing, follow a standard format and provide factual information such as:

- dates of employment with the FCA
- latest position held (eg associate) and latest division worked in

We will not provide verbal references, testimonials or open references (eg To Whom It May Concern).

Enhanced references

If a prospective employer or an agent of that prospective employer asks the FCA to give an enhanced reference for an employee or ex-employee for a role that requires approval, certification or which is otherwise regulated in accordance with FCA or PRA rules and it is requested in accordance with that prospective employer's regulatory reference obligations, the FCA will provide one. The enhanced reference will disclose:

- any formal disciplinary action that the FCA has taken against that individual under the FCA's disciplinary policy, namely any written (first or final) warning or any dismissal under that policy. Such formal disciplinary action shall be disclosed if it took place in the 6 years prior to the date at which the FCA receives the regulatory reference request (disciplinary actions that were issued before 1 November 2017 will not be disclosed). Disciplinary action for cases of serious misconduct shall be disclosed even if the misconduct occurred more than 6 years before the date on which the FCA receives the regulatory reference request
- any reduction in compensation due to the individual because of any formal disciplinary sanction having been issued against them. A reduction in such compensation will only be disclosed if it occurred in the 6 years before the date on which the FCA receives the regulatory reference request (but not if it occurred before 1 November 2017)
- in certain circumstances, the reference may also refer to the fact that the employee resigned part-way through a disciplinary process before any conclusion was reached or formal sanction issued reference materially inaccurate or incorrect or which the FCA reasonably considers would have been included in the reference if they had been known about at the time (including without limitation if new evidence of misconduct or serious misconduct comes to light), the FCA reserves the right to update the original reference.

If new matters later come to light which, in the FCA's reasonable opinion, render the original

This policy has been introduced to reflect the fact the FCA requires regulated firms to provide enhanced regulatory references in certain circumstances.

Confirmation of employment letters

For information about Confirmation of Employment letters for existing employees (eg for visa applications or financial references), please see the Employment References section on the Intranet.

1.13 Travel and expenses policy

You should be familiar with the travel and expenses policy on the Intranet, and all employees should ensure that any out of pocket expenditure incurred on behalf of the company should be submitted in the Workday expense module within 30 days of incurring the cost and supported with the appropriate documentation. We will aim to pay all valid approved expense claims within 7 days of managers electronic approval and will send back via Workday any non-compliant claims within 3 working days of submission.

The travel and expenses Policy is comprehensive but it is not possible to set out the rules to accommodate every situation. You must adhere to the express terms in this policy but also exercise your judgement to ensure that all claims made are within the spirit of the policy. You should consider your corporate responsibility and be sensitive as to what is "reasonable" in view of the fact that the FCA is an independent public body, and considering Freedom of Information Act requests (FOIA), Value for Money (VFM) and other disclosures. If you are in any doubt, you should seek prior authorisation from your line manager or guidance from the StaffExpenses@fca.org.uk mailbox.

1.14 Environmental policy

We are committed to minimising our environmental impact and becoming a leading example of a sustainable organisation. To achieve this we will maintain certification against the international standard ISO 14001:2015 Environmental Management Systems and also measure ourselves against the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

We review and publish our Environmental Policy statement annually which is approved by our Chief Operating Officer.

Detailed information on sustainability is contained in the FCA's Environmental Management Strategy, which is available on the Environmental pages on the Intranet. The document describes a systematic framework for managing the FCA's environmental aspects and impacts. It contains the policies, aims and objectives, resources, legislative constraints and accountabilities necessary to achieve our goals.

1.15 Dress code

You must wear appropriate business dress, which is fit for purpose, while at work and outside working hours when representing the FCA. Importantly, colleagues must be able to exercise choice and control over their appearance and wear clothing which is safe, comfortable and appropriate both to the working environment and to their gender identity and expression. While you have discretion to decide what appropriate dress is, line managers retain responsibility for the interpretation and application of this.

1.16 Weekly timecards

To measure corporate, divisional and departmental performance, and to ensure compliance with some of our health and safety obligations, all staff who meet the 'Headcount' definition (i.e. all employees, secondees, contractors and long-term agency temps) must complete weekly timecards on a timely and accurate basis. Data recorded should reflect actual hours worked by activity performed and be submitted by close of business on the first working day each week for the preceding week. If you are exempt from completing timecards, your line manager will tell you.

1.17 Ordering goods and services

All orders for goods and services for the FCA are required to be made with an approved purchase order. All suppliers should be advised to quote the purchase order number on invoices and submit directly to the Accounts Payable department accountspayable@fca.org.uk.

Orders should be created for the total value of goods / services inclusive of VAT.

If the total value of a purchase exceeds £30,000 (incl. VAT) the ordering department must contact the Procurement team before contacting the supplier.

1.18 Personal mail

Personal mail and packages can be sent to the FCA's addresses, however we will not be responsible for its safe delivery and it may be opened for security purposes. When personal mail/packages are received the postroom will email you to inform you of your delivery, you must collect your item within 1 week. You may not use the FCA's stationery or postage for personal correspondence, but may send personal mail from the office provided that you pay for postage by affixing the appropriate stamp(s).

2. DEVELOPING YOU

One of our values is Be Ambitious - the determination to maintain high standards by challenging the status quo, delivering at pace, and being prepared for the future. Consistent with this value, the FCA supports the continuous development of its employees, enabled by the policies in this section of the handbook.

2.1 Probation

We believe a probationary period is important. It gives the employee the opportunity to understand what is required of them in their new role and to demonstrate the performance, behaviours and attendance levels required.

It also gives the organisation an opportunity to provide any training and coaching required and for the line manager and the employee to discuss progress in the role. The probation period allows the employee to ascertain whether this is the right role for them, and the FCA/PSR whether the employee is right for the role.

During the probationary period, you and your line manager should meet regularly to discuss how you are settling into your new role, how things are going and to identify any support that may be beneficial to the requirements of the role.

You will be required to complete a probationary period which is outlined in your contract of employment after which, unless you are advised to the contrary, your employment is confirmed.

If there are concerns about your performance, behaviour or attendance then your line manager will talk to you about these and seek to identify ways to support you to address such issues. The probationary period may be extended if your manager believes you need more time to show that you meet the required standards. If your line manager feels that insufficient progress is being made or that you are unable or unwilling to meet the requirements of the role, your employment will be ended.

2.2 Performance and career development (PCD)

The performance of the FCA in delivering its strategic aims relies on the performance of our people. We do this by ensuring that we have the right people, with the right capabilities, in the right roles and by providing development opportunities so that our people can both develop in role and progress their broader career aspirations.

At the FCA we use PCD to structure how we think and talk about work, and personal development, so that people can deliver at their best, learn and develop in line with their goals and career aspirations. Your objectives, job responsibilities and behaviours represent a set of work standards, and these standards are the basis for your PCD conversations over the course of the year. If you are unclear on the standards applicable to you, you should work with your line manager to establish clarity and commitment.

PCD happens throughout the year. It is not a just a 6 monthly formal review but is a continuous conversation between you and your line manager that often occurs through your regular one to one meetings. We all have a responsibility to manage our own performance through proactively seeking and learning from feedback and being open and honest in our performance conversations.

As well as frequent conversations with your line manager, often through your one to ones, we have 2 checkpoints (interim and year-end review) in the performance year in which we formally evaluate performance and consider your longer-term development and career aspirations.

Performance at the FCA comprises of delivery against objectives and broader role requirements and the extent to which your behaviour has aligned with our values. Strong performance in one area cannot compensate for another. We all need to perform to expectations across these areas.

As PCD is a continuous process, both you and your line manager need to have a clear understanding of how you are performing throughout the year. There should be no surprises at the formal check points. You should discuss with your line manager any support and development opportunities you need to help you perform to the best of your ability.

If at any stage, there are concerns you are not performing satisfactorily, a performance improvement plan may be put in place in accordance with the Performance Management Procedure.

There are many opportunities within the FCA to develop your skills and knowledge both on the job and through training and events. Further information about training, coaching, mentoring and other support on offer can be found on the Intranet.

Your year-end performance rating helps inform decisions as part of the annual pay review. Further details can be found on the Intranet.

2.3 Learning and development

We are committed to the development of our employees as part of our Employee Value Proposition. Our internal and external development options and qualifications programmes support the development of colleagues in building the knowledge, skills and behaviours that are important to the FCA in achieving our goals and mission. We also offer support in obtaining formal qualifications or attending training or conferences. Please visit the relevant Intranet pages for further information.

Mandatory training

Alongside our commitment to continuous development, we also have mandatory training for employees. These mandatory topics are very important areas of knowledge, skills and behaviour. The topics include Health and Safety, Security, and Corporate Induction. Please see the Intranet pages for a full list. All employees must complete mandatory training assigned to them within the period specified. Non-compliance may result in disciplinary action.

Investing time in your development

Time for development is readily available for all employees. We provide facilities and resources to help you learn as well as time away from your role to attend training events, locally arranged knowledge sharing sessions, formal programmes and, where appropriate, time away from work for formal study.

Study leave is available for part-time, evening, distance learning and 'block-release' studies. There must be a business case for any 'block-release' or other time away from normal working hours, required as part of the study program.

On average, it is suggested that around 5 days (pro-rated) paid study leave per annum would be appropriate. However, for certain industry qualifications, additional time off work to attend courses may be permitted.

Any proposed study leave should be agreed with your line manager before applying for the course as there may be business reasons why study leave cannot be approved or why it may be limited.

If you are undertaking study or training that you are paying for yourself, you have the right to apply for time off to study or train. Approval cannot be guaranteed and again you should discuss your study leave requirements with your line manager before committing yourself to a course if possible. Further details can be found on the Intranet.

Sponsorship for full-time study is not available.

2.4 Time off for public duties

Employees are entitled to a reasonable amount of unpaid time off work to carry out the following public duties:

- a magistrate (also known as a justice of the peace)
- a local councillor
- a school governor
- a member of any statutory tribunal (for example an employment tribunal)
- a member of the managing or governing body of an educational establishment
- a member of a health authority
- a member of a school council or board in Scotland
- a member of the Environment Agency or the Scottish Environment Protection agency
- a member of the prison independent monitoring boards (England or Wales) or a member of the prison visiting committees (Scotland)
- a member of Scottish Water or a Water Customer Consultation Panel
- a trade union member (for trade union duties)

If you are unsure whether a public service that you perform is covered by this policy you should speak to the HR Helpline.

As soon as you are aware that you will require time off for public service you should notify your line manager in writing, providing full details of the time off you are requesting and the reasons for your request. In order that arrangements can be made to cover your duties in your absence you should make your request in good time (where possible at the beginning of each year).

Each request for time off will be considered by your line manager on its merits taking account of all circumstances. This will include how much time is reasonably required for the activity, how much time you have already taken, and how your absence will affect the organisation's operations.

You must record your public duty absences via Workday, whether paid or unpaid, so that your manager can monitor the level of absence. Line managers should refer any requests beyond the guidelines set out in this policy to the HR Delivery Senior Manager. Although time off for public duties, including membership of local authorities may be granted, you will not be granted time off to engage in activities that support a political party. For example, to prepare, produce or distribute party political literature

Other voluntary public duties

Certain public duties carry a statutory right to reasonable time off, but there is no legal obligation for the time to be paid. Your line manager may need to use their discretion in some circumstances, but our guidelines are as follows:

- magistrate duties and reserve forces activities: up to 10 days paid leave per year, in addition to any entitlement under the Corporate responsibility volunteering policy
- other public duties (including Special Constables): up to 5 days unpaid leave per year, in addition to any entitlement under the Corporate responsibility volunteering policy

Jury service

You should tell your line manager as soon as you are summoned for jury service and provide a copy of your summons if requested.

Depending on operational demands, we may request that you apply to be excused from or defer your jury service.

We are not required by law to pay you while you are absent on jury service. The Court will advise you of the expenses and loss of earnings that you can claim. However, we will pay base salary to employees on jury service less any amounts you can claim from the Court for loss of earnings.

You should attend work on any days or half days when you are not required at Court.

3. REWARDING YOU

Our values are about setting high standards and holding ourselves to account for effective delivery. In particular, we need to Be Ambitious and Act with Integrity in order to build confidence and trust. At the FCA we aim for a high performance culture where employees are rewarded not only for their achievements but how they achieve them. The policies in this section of the handbook are consistent with this values-led approach.

3.1 Salary and benefits policy

The FCA offers both financial and non-financial rewards as part of working at the FCA. The focus is on rewarding those who consistently deliver against objectives, make a significant overall contribution to the FCA's regulatory goals, and demonstrate the values and behaviours that the FCA expects and requires.

Elements of remuneration

All permanent and fixed-term employees are eligible to receive the following:

Base salary ('pay')

This is the salary for your role and determines all other benefits including pension contribution made by the FCA, flexible benefits allowance, overtime (if appropriate), A and sick pay. In addition, Performance Related Pay is determined with reference to both your salary and performance rating.

The FCA sets its base salaries using benchmarking data for the financial and non-financial sectors and the London and National geographical areas. As a general principle, salaries at the FCA are around the median for the relevant career family and grade level. This positioning is decided by a range of factors including, but not limited to, experience, skills and affordability. In any group of employees, we expect that there will be a range of salaries at, above and below the median of any given salary range.

Your salary will be paid on 23rd of each month into the bank or building society account you nominate. If the 23rd falls on a weekend or public holiday, your salary will be paid on the previous working day. Your payslip is available online through iPayview.

You must tell us about any changes to your bank or building society account by updating Workday. Any changes will be effective from after the next payroll processing cut-off date.

We reserve the right at any time and, in any event if your employment ends, to deduct from your pay any amounts that you owe, regardless of the reason for the amount owed. This can be from your base salary, annual leave pay, sick pay, maternity/adoption or shared parental payments and any other type of pay. Amounts that you owe may include season ticket loans or other loans, expenses allowance, annual leave taken in excess of entitlement, repayment of training expenses incurred under a sponsored study arrangement, a deficit of hours under the flexitime scheme, estimated value of any FCA property damaged by you, or the estimated value of any FCA property retained by you without permission when you leave.

We also reserve the right to deduct from your pay an amount equal to any allowance you receive while performing public service or on jury service.

Tax, National Insurance Contributions and any other statutory payments are deducted from your pay on a regular basis. We have a statutory right to make other deductions from your pay, for example, if you owe money to the FCA due to any overpayment of remuneration or expenses, or in response to a court order.

If you resign, you will receive your P45 in the post after your final salary payment. You will be able to access your payslips on iPayview for up to 7 years.

Pension

The FCA operates a non-contributory pension plan for all employees that offers pension benefits in the Money Purchase part of the Plan.

Core benefits

All employees receive some core benefits outside of the Flexible Benefits Plan. In addition to core annual leave, these include life assurance, permanent health assurance and private medical insurance.

Base salary and core benefits are contractual elements and form part of your Personal Statement of Terms and Conditions of Employment.

Flexible benefits

The FCA operates a Flexible Benefits Plan under which you will receive an amount of money each month (your 'flex account') which can be used for additional benefits to suit your needs and lifestyle.

Adjusted salary

Your 'adjusted salary' is the term used to describe the amount that you are paid after applying any increase or reduction to your base salary because of the choices you have made for your Flexible Benefits Plan. If there are no adjustments resulting from the Flexible Benefits Plan, your 'adjusted salary' will be the same as your base salary.

For a full explanation of the Flexible Benefits Plan and how it works, please see the Flexible Benefits Plan booklet.

Annual pay review including Performance Related Pay

Salaries are reviewed annually with any increases usually taking effect 1 April. Any increase will be at the sole discretion of the FCA.

The specific eligibility criteria confirming which employees are eligible to participate in the annual review will be set out each year in the annual pay review guidance.

We will confirm any increase in salary in writing. You will not be eligible to receive any increase if you have given or received notice of termination of employment before the 1 April.

Retention payments

The FCA recognises the need to identify and retain key skills to deliver our business plan. In some situations we may consider an additional payment to retain certain individuals.

3.2 Overtime policy

In certain circumstances, you may be entitled to payment for work performed outside your normal working hours. Eligibility for overtime will be stated in your Personal Statement. Currently only those on the Professional Support contractual grade who are in the Professional Support or Senior Professional Support grade level are eligible for overtime.

Overtime will only be paid for pre-agreed project work or role-specific tasks that cannot be carried out during normal working hours, and other exceptional circumstances as agreed by your Director.

The following applies to overtime payments:

- you must get approval from your Director before working paid overtime
- claims must be made monthly, for overtime worked in the previous month, through Workday
- payments will be made through the payroll (the cut-off date for inclusion in the payroll is the first working day of the month)
- eligible full time employees will not be paid for overtime until they have worked at least 36 hours in a week, ie you must work 1 hour over your normal weekly working hours to be able to claim pre-approved overtime
- part time employees will be paid overtime at their normal hourly rate until they have worked 36 hours in a week (the equivalent for full time employees)
- once employees have worked 36 hours in a week, overtime payments will only be made for overtime of more than 1 hour in any day and for each completed period of 15 minutes worked thereafter, in accordance with the rates set out below

Overtime rates for Professional Support and Senior Professional Support grade levels working 36 hours or more during 1 week
Monday to Friday	1.5 x pensionable salary hourly rate
Saturday, Sunday and Bank Holidays	2.0 x pensionable salary hourly rate

3.3 Out of hours working policy

Eligible Associates (with Associate benefits) in the Information Systems, Property & Workplace, or Corporate Security departments, may be eligible to be considered for paid overtime for out of hours working. Your Personal Statement will state whether you are eligible to receive paid overtime. There is no automatic entitlement to work and be paid for overtime.

Where possible, out-of-hours working, whether planned or unplanned, will be dealt with by use of rota/staggered hours. Additional hours worked, which cannot be accommodated in this way, will normally be compensated by time off in lieu. In exceptional circumstances, if other methods have been ruled out, Directors may use their discretion to allow overtime payments. Any overtime payments must be authorised by the Divisional Director before the relevant work is started.

Payment arrangements are currently as follows:

Out of Hours Working
Monday to Friday	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Time off in lieu wherever possible • If time off in lieu is not possible, after completion of 1 hour's overtime in any 1 day, payment will be made for each completed period of 15 minutes worked, at 1.5 x pensionable salary hourly rate. Payment will not be made for overtime of less than 1 hour in any day
Weekends (attendance commencing between midnight Friday and 5am Monday) or public holidays	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A flat rate payment of £80 plus • payment for each completed period of 15 minutes worked, at 1.5 x pensionable salary hourly rate

4. SUPPORTING YOU

We believe in the power of collaboration, have deep respect for differences and recognise the benefits of active inclusion. These principles are embodied in our values Work Inclusively and Connect & Deliver which underpin the policies in this section of the handbook.

4.1 Corporate responsibility and diversity and inclusion

Corporate Responsibility (CR) at the FCA focuses on equality, diversity and inclusion (D&I), community engagement, sustainability and charitable fundraising for our 2 official charities.

Commitment to diversity and inclusion

Our overall commitment to diversity and inclusion is set out in the FCA Business Plan, diversity and inclusion strategy and objectives. All FCA staff are expected to show this commitment, as a minimum, through the FCA Capability Framework, and compliance with our Equal Opportunities and Respect at Work Policy.

FCA senior management are expected to:

- apply the Positive Action Framework in their daily management activities to help the organisation achieve its diversity and inclusion goals
- take seriously all complaints, whether raised informally or formally through the Equality Complaints Procedure, and take appropriate action
- protect anyone who makes a complaint in good faith about an equality matter, or acts as a witness or supports a colleague

FCA staff, irrespective of job level, are expected to:

- take personal responsibility for creating and maintaining a positive working environment in which, discrimination, victimisation, bullying and harassment are not tolerated, and where we treat each other with dignity and respect
- value difference and respect the contributions everyone makes to the FCA
- have a good level of understanding of our D&I obligations and behave as a representative of the FCA at all times, including the various ways we interact with others, at work-related social events and on social networking sites
- include D&I priorities within our business operations, policies, training and practices
- demonstrate behaviours set out in the FCA Capability framework
- undertake relevant D&I training (eg Diversity & Inclusion and Unconscious Bias eLearning, Recruitment eLearning and Successful Interviewing workshop)
- support the FCA, when requested, in the investigation of any complaints made under the Equality Complaints Procedure

Volunteering

Employees can benefit from volunteering to build or practise new skills and capabilities. Volunteering also gives individuals rich insights into different communities which help us to better understand the communities we are part of, and the people who benefit from effective regulation of financial services.

We encourage our people to participate in volunteering and reflect this by allocating working hours to such initiatives. Full time employees can use up to 35 hours paid leave per financial year (pro-rated for part time employees), this should be recorded under the iTime code: CR0002 Volunteering or Fundraising. Please visit the Volunteering Pulse page for further information.

4.2 Equal opportunities and respect at work

We are committed to promoting equality, diversity and inclusion, providing a working environment free from harassment and bullying and ensuring that all staff are treated, and treat others with dignity and respect. To this end and to continue to make the FCA a positive place to work we want all staff to be clear about the behaviours and actions that are discriminatory and/or amount to bullying or harassment. We also want staff to feel comfortable raising issues under this policy as soon as possible, so that we can provide support and take appropriate action to resolve the situation.

You and job applicants will receive equal treatment regardless of age, disability, gender reassignment, gender identity or expression, marital or civil partner status, pregnancy or maternity, race, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, religion or belief, sex or sexual orientation ('protected characteristics').

This policy sets out our approach to equal opportunities and the avoidance and elimination of discrimination at work. It applies to all aspects of employment including recruitment, promotion, training, learning and development, access to facilities, reward and benefits, flexible working, disciplinary, performance management and grievance procedures and termination of employment. It also applies to the way in which we treat visitors, firms, suppliers and former members of staff and covers behaviour both at work and out of the workplace such as at work-related events or social functions.

We will not tolerate any form of discrimination based on any of the protected characteristics or any bullying or harassment in any area of our work. All staff have a duty to treat colleagues appropriately at all times.

This policy covers all individuals working for the FCA including all employees, contractors, consultants, agency workers and interns.

Discrimination

You must not unlawfully discriminate against or harass other people including current and former employees, job applicants, clients, customers, suppliers and visitors. This applies in the workplace, outside the workplace (when dealing with firms, suppliers or other work-related contacts), and on work-related trips or events including social events.

The following forms of discrimination are prohibited under this policy and are unlawful:

- (i) Direct discrimination: treating someone less favourably because of a protected characteristic (actual, perceived or through association). For example, rejecting a job applicant because of their religious views or because they might be gay.
- (ii) Indirect discrimination: a provision, criterion or practice that applies to everyone but adversely affects people with a particular protected characteristic more than others, and is not justified. For example, requiring a job to be done full-time rather than part-time may adversely affect women because they generally have greater childcare commitments than men. Such a requirement would be discriminatory unless it can be justified.

- (iii) Harassment: this includes sexual harassment and other unwanted physical, verbal or non-verbal conduct related to a protected characteristic, which has the purpose or effect of violating someone's dignity or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for them. It also includes treating someone less favourably because they have submitted or refused to submit to such behaviour in the past.
- (iv) Victimisation: retaliation against someone who has complained or has supported someone else's complaint about discrimination or harassment.
- (v) Disability discrimination: this includes direct and indirect discrimination, any unjustified less favourable treatment because of the effects of a disability, and failure to make reasonable adjustments to alleviate disadvantages caused by a disability.

Disabilities

If you are disabled or become disabled, we encourage you to tell us about your condition so that we can support you as appropriate.

If you experience difficulties at work because of your disability, you may wish to contact your line manager and the HR Helpline to discuss any reasonable adjustments that would help overcome or minimise the difficulty. We may wish to consult with you and your medical adviser about possible adjustments. We will consider the matter carefully and try to accommodate your needs within reason. If we consider a particular adjustment would not be reasonable we will explain our reasons and try to find an alternative solution where possible.

We will monitor the physical features of our premises to consider whether they might place anyone with a disability at a substantial disadvantage. Where necessary, we will take reasonable steps to improve access.

Harassment

A single incident can amount to harassment. Harassment is unacceptable even if it does not fall within any of the protected characteristic categories.

Examples of harassment may include:

- unwanted physical contact ranging from touching to serious sexual or physical assault - invading someone's personal space may amount to harassment
- verbal conduct such as sexist, racist, ageist, homophobic, biphobic and/or transphobic comments or innuendo; derogatory remarks about any individual or group with one of the protected characteristics; offensive slogans, insults, comments of a personal nature; suggestive remarks, nicknames, inappropriate 'banter', jokes or language
- spreading rumours or gossip including speculating about someone's sexual orientation or gender identity or outing them
- purposefully ignoring someone's preferred pronoun
- unwanted non-verbal conduct, including sexually suggestive behaviour and/or gestures, staring and leering, or other unwanted sexual attention or advances
- the display, storage or circulation of offensive material (including information held on or accessed by computer) by whatever means
- conduct that threatens, ridicules, intimidates or abuses, undermines or undervalues an individual including derogatory or degrading remarks or insults, offensive comments about appearance or dress, spreading malicious rumours
- open aggression, obscenities, uncontrolled anger

- suggestions that sexual favours may result in career advancement or some other employment benefit (or that refusal of such suggestions may result in some form of detriment)
- unfair treatment, which might include deliberately excluding someone from social activities because they have or are perceived to have a protected characteristic or associate with a person who does

Bullying

Bullying is offensive, intimidating, malicious or insulting behaviour involving the misuse of power that can make a person feel vulnerable, upset, humiliated, undermined or threatened. Power does not always mean being in a position of authority, but can include both personal strength and the power to coerce through fear or intimidation.

Bullying can take the form of physical, verbal and non-verbal conduct. Bullying may include, by way of example:

- physical or psychological threats
- overbearing and intimidating levels of supervision
- inappropriate derogatory remarks about someone's performance

Legitimate, reasonable and constructive criticism of a worker's performance or behaviour, or reasonable instructions given to workers during their employment, will not amount to bullying on their own.

Complaints and support available

You may experience or witness behaviours from an individual or group that you feel are unacceptable as set out in this policy. The Equality Complaints Procedure outlines various options available to you to raise concerns. We believe that, wherever possible, issues are best dealt with promptly and informally in the first instance.

Neither discrimination, bullying nor harassment will be tolerated by the FCA. Employees found to have discriminated, bullied and/or harassed are likely to face disciplinary action under our Disciplinary Procedure. Such conduct may amount to gross misconduct resulting in dismissal.

There must be no victimisation or retaliation against staff who complain about discrimination. However, making a false allegation deliberately and in bad faith will be treated as misconduct and dealt with under our Disciplinary Procedure.

4.3 Trans inclusion policy

We are committed to having a diverse and engaged workforce and recognise the need to respond to the differing needs of all our staff. We understand the importance of affording everyone dignity and respect in order that individuals feel included, add value and can flourish, fulfilling their potential without fear of discrimination, harassment or victimisation.

This policy is designed to assist in the recruitment and retention of trans individuals and provide information and support for all employees regarding trans, non-binary and gender identity.

Many individuals have an innate sense of being male or female, their gender identity matches their sex assigned at birth and they do not have any questions over their gender identity. However, there are a number of individuals whose gender identity does not match the sex they were assigned at birth and they may identify themselves as trans, non-binary and/or gender non-conforming. Some may undergo the process of aligning their life and/or physical identity to match their gender identity, and this is called transitioning.

Individuals all view themselves and their experience in a unique way, and will have personal preferences in terms of language, but for this policy, we use the umbrella term 'trans'.

We will seek to ensure that we:

- address any specific needs of our trans and non-binary staff throughout their employment (with specific, but not exclusive, reference to recruitment and transitioning at work)
- support any member of staff as they transition. Guidance is available on the Intranet under HR Essentials
- raise awareness and understanding among our wider staff group about trans, non-binary and gender identity, so that there is better insight in supporting staff with confidence
- treat all our staff as individuals without the need to reference gender identity or transgender
- undertake Equality Impact Assessments with specific reference to trans issues

All staff have a duty to act in accordance with this policy and to treat colleagues appropriately at all times and not to discriminate against, harass or victimise others, regardless of their status. Please make sure you are aware of your obligations in the Corporate Responsibility and diversity and inclusion policy.

Complaints related to this policy should be raised under the Equality Complaints Procedure. If complaints are about the conduct of third party agents or organisations who supply staff to the FCA, these issues will be raised with the relevant individual's employer to agree appropriate action.

4.4 Equality complaints procedure

Our Equal Opportunities and Respect at Work policy confirms our commitment to eliminating discrimination, victimisation, harassment (as defined by the Equality Act 2010) and bullying. Our Corporate Responsibility and diversity and inclusion policy outlines our expectations of employees in their behaviours to others through the FCA's Capability Framework.

If you feel you have been unlawfully discriminated against, or are the subject of bullying, harassment or victimisation, we encourage you to raise this as soon as possible. If we are made aware of the issues, we can address them appropriately, while providing you with the level of support that you need to address the situation. We understand that experiencing such situations can be difficult and upsetting. We want to provide a framework for dealing with such complaints in a way that makes you feel more comfortable.

This procedure explains in detail where you can get help and suggests several ways that you can raise any incidents that you experience or witness, either informally or as a formal complaint.

This procedure is separate from, but complementary to, our Grievance Procedure which is used for other employment-related complaints that are not connected to an equality/bullying matter. If your complaint contains elements that could relate to either Procedure, we will follow the Equality Complaints Procedure.

Informal steps

If you believe you have been discriminated against or are being harassed or bullied, you should consider whether you feel able to raise the problem with the person informally.

You should speak to the person as soon after the event as possible, and explain clearly to them that their behaviour is not welcome or makes you uncomfortable. If this is too difficult or embarrassing, you should speak to your line manager or the HR Helpline, who can give confidential advice and assistance in resolving the issue formally or informally. Other options for resolving the matter informally include speaking to the person on your behalf, or a facilitated meeting between you and the other person led by an impartial third party such as a member of the HR Division.

If you are not certain whether an incident or series of incidents amounts to discrimination, bullying or harassment, you should initially contact the HR Helpline, the Equal Opportunities Officer, the FCA's Employee Assistance Programme or an SCC Representative for confidential advice. Other sources of support include a member of an appropriate staff network group or a trusted colleague.

If informal steps are not appropriate, or have been unsuccessful, you should follow the formal procedure set out below.

Stage 1: Raising a formal complaint

If you wish to make a formal complaint, you should complete a grievance form and submit it to the Employee Relations team who will appoint an appropriate manager to hear your complaint. Grievance forms are available from the HR Helpline.

Your written complaint should set out:

- full details of the conduct in question
- the name of the perpetrator(s)
- the date and time and where such conduct occurred
- the names of any witnesses
- any action that has been taken so far to attempt to stop the conduct from occurring

As a general principle, the decision whether to progress a complaint is up to you. However, we have a duty to protect all employees and may pursue the matter independently if, in all the circumstances, we consider it appropriate to do so.

Investigation

We will take all complaints seriously, and investigate them sensitively, and in a timely and confidential manner. The investigation will be supported by a member of the HR team. The investigation should be thorough, impartial and objective, and carried out with sensitivity and respect for the rights of all parties concerned.

We will meet with you as soon as practicable so that you can explain your account of events. Ideally this will be within 10 working days of receiving your written complaint, subject to any prerequisite investigation and the investigator's availability. We may arrange further meetings with you as appropriate throughout the investigation. The meeting will be digitally recorded and you will be sent a copy of the transcript after the meeting.

We will also meet with the person who is the subject of your complaint to hear their account of events. They have a right to be told the details of the allegations against them, so that they can respond.

It may be necessary to interview witnesses to any of the incidents mentioned in your complaint.

At the end of the investigation, we will produce a letter or report which sets out the findings and the outcome of the investigation and any recommendations. We will usually arrange a meeting with you to discuss the outcome and any action that is considered appropriate in the circumstances. We will aim to hold the meeting as soon as reasonably practicable - ideally within 20 working days of the investigation meeting with you. However, each case is different and there may be complexities which necessitate tailored and extended timelines to ensure a comprehensive investigation takes place. There may also be occasions where key participants in the process are not available, sometimes due to absence or pre-planned leave. In such cases, we will let you know and we will make every effort to complete the process as quickly as possible.

The outcome

If your complaint is upheld in whole or in part, prompt action will be taken to address it. Where the perpetrator is an employee, the matter may be dealt with as a case of possible misconduct or gross misconduct under our Disciplinary Procedure. If they are a third party such as a supplier or other visitor, we will consider what action is appropriate.

Whether or not your complaint is upheld, we will consider how best to manage the working relationship between you and the person concerned. We may consider it appropriate to arrange some form of mediation and/or counselling or to change the working arrangements of one or both parties.

Stage 2: Appeal

If you are not satisfied with the outcome you may appeal in writing to the Equal Opportunities Officer, stating your full grounds of appeal, within 10 working days of the date on which the decision was sent or given to you.

In your appeal submission, you should make it clear what areas of the original investigation you believe should be reconsidered. Suitable grounds for an appeal could include insufficient investigation of a point, failure to interview key witnesses, failure to consider evidence, failure to address an area outlined in the initial grievance, or a misunderstanding of evidence provided.

The Equal Opportunities Officer may nominate an appropriate manager to hear the appeal who has not been previously involved in the case.

A meeting will be held with you to discuss the grounds of your appeal. This will usually take place within 10 working days of receipt of your written appeal, subject to the need to carry out any further investigations arising from your grounds of appeal and the availability of the relevant individuals.

We will confirm our final decision in writing as soon as practicable, ideally within 20 working days of the appeal meeting, subject to the complexity of the investigation and the availability of key participants in the process. This is the end of the procedure and there is no further right to appeal.

Right to be accompanied

You may bring a companion to any meeting under this procedure. The companion may be either an SCC Representative, another FCA colleague (not a member of HR) or a trade union representative. You should tell the assisting HR representative who your companion is in advance of the meeting.

If your chosen companion is not available for the meeting and will not be available for more than 5 working days afterwards, we may ask you to choose someone else.

Protection and support for those involved

Participating in an investigation process, whether as a complainant, witness or respondent, can be a stressful and emotionally challenging time. We encourage you to seek support from your SCC Representative or our Employee Assistance Programme if you need someone to talk to.

Where your complaint is about an employee, we will consider whether it is appropriate to make any temporary changes to working arrangements pending the outcome of the investigation. For example, it may be appropriate to make changes to your duties, your working hours and/or your place of work or those of the person about whom you have complained to minimise contact between you during the investigation. Although our decision regarding any such changes will be final, as far as reasonably practical, we will seek to agree a suitable solution with all parties.

Where your complaint is about someone other than an employee, such as a contractor, supplier or visitor, we will consider what action may be appropriate to protect you and anyone involved pending the outcome of the investigation. This will bear in mind the reasonable needs of the FCA and the rights of that person. Where appropriate, we will attempt to discuss the matter with the third party.

Employees who make complaints or who participate in good faith in any investigation under this procedure must not suffer any form of retaliation or victimisation as a result. Anyone found to have retaliated against or victimised someone in this way will be subject to disciplinary action under our Disciplinary Procedure.

If you believe you have suffered any such treatment, either during or after the investigation, you should inform your line manager, the HR Helpline, or the HR representative who assisted with the investigation, who will be able to advise you on next steps.

Information about a complaint and any investigation must be treated as confidential by all the employees involved.

Anybody who deliberately gives false information, attempts to interfere with the conduct of the investigation, or otherwise acts in bad faith as part of an investigation may be subject to action under our Disciplinary Procedure.

4.5 Grievance procedure

We understand that sometimes employees may be unhappy about aspects of their working life. This procedure applies to all employees regardless of length of service and provides a framework for addressing any grievances relating to employment fairly and without unreasonable delay.

Using this procedure

Issues that could cause grievances may include:

- terms and conditions of employment
- work relations
- working practices
- working environment
- organisational change

This Grievance Procedure should not be used to complain about dismissal or disciplinary action. If you are dissatisfied with any disciplinary action, you should submit an appeal under the Disciplinary Procedure.

We have a separate Equality Complaints Procedure if you have been the victim of discrimination, bullying or harassment. If your complaint contains elements that could relate to either procedure, we will use the Equality Complaints Procedure to hear your complaint.

We have a separate Whistleblowing Policy to enable employees to report illegal activities, wrongdoing or malpractice. However, if you feel you have been victimised for an act of whistleblowing, you may raise the matter under this Grievance Procedure.

Raising grievances informally

Most grievances can be resolved quickly and informally. In the first instance you should discuss your concerns with your immediate line manager. If you feel unable to speak to your line manager then you should contact your line manager's manager or the HR Helpline. If this does not resolve the issue you should follow the formal procedure below.

Formal written grievances

Stage 1:

To raise a formal grievance you must complete a grievance form and submit full details of your grievance to the Employee Relations team. Grievance forms are available from the HR Helpline.

An appropriate manager will be appointed and a meeting will be arranged for you to explain and discuss your concerns. The manager will be supported by an HR representative. We will aim to hold the meeting as soon as reasonably practicable, ideally within 10 working days of receiving your written grievance, subject to the availability of relevant individuals and any prerequisite investigation. We will digitally record the meeting and send you a copy of the transcript.

The amount of any investigation required will depend on the nature of the allegations and will vary from case to case. It may be necessary to interview witnesses to verify the details mentioned in your complaint.

We will write to you following the final grievance meeting to inform you of the outcome of your grievance and any action that we intend to take to resolve the grievance. We will aim to write to you as soon as reasonably practicable, ideally within 20 working days of the investigation meeting with you. As each case is different, there may be circumstances where additional time is required. For example, due to the complexities involved, the level of investigation required and the availability of key individuals. In such cases, we will let you know and we will make every effort to complete the process as quickly as possible.

Stage 2:

If the grievance has not been resolved to your satisfaction you may appeal in writing to the Employee Relations Manager stating your full grounds of appeal. An appeal must be submitted within 10 working days of the date on which the decision was sent or given to you. The Employee Relations Manager will then appoint an appropriate manager who has not previously been involved in the case to hear your appeal, as well as an appropriate HR representative to assist the investigation.

In your appeal submission, you should make it clear what areas of the original investigation you believe should be reconsidered. Suitable grounds for an appeal could include insufficient investigation of a point, failure to interview key witnesses, failure to consider evidence, failure to address an area outlined in the initial grievance, or a misunderstanding of evidence provided.

We will hold an appeal hearing to discuss your appeal as soon as reasonably practicable. The meeting will be digitally recorded and a copy of the transcript will be sent you after the meeting. We will make a decision and confirm it in writing as soon as practicable, ideally within 20 working days of the appeal meeting, subject to any further investigation that may be required. This decision will be final and there is no further right to appeal.

Right to be accompanied

You may bring a companion to any meeting under this procedure. The companion may be either an SCC Representative, another FCA colleague (not a member of HR) or a trade union representative. You should tell the assisting HR representative who your companion is in advance of the meeting.

If your chosen companion is not available for the meeting and will not be available for more than 5 working days afterwards, we may ask you to choose someone else.

Protection and support for those involved

Participating in an investigation process, whether as a complainant, witness or respondent, can be a stressful and emotionally challenging time. We encourage you to seek support from your SCC Representative or our Employee Assistance Programme if you need someone to talk to.

Employees who make complaints or who participate in good faith in any investigation under this procedure must not suffer any form of retaliation or victimisation as a result. Anyone found to have retaliated against or victimised someone in this way will be subject to disciplinary action under our Disciplinary Procedure.

If you believe you have suffered any such treatment, either during or after the investigation, you should inform your line manager or HR representative who will be able to advise you on next steps.

Information about an investigation or disciplinary matter must be treated as confidential by all parties.

Any person who deliberately provides false information, attempts to interfere with the conduct of the investigation, or otherwise acts in bad faith as part of an investigation may be subject to action under our Disciplinary Procedure.

4.6 Disciplinary procedure

The aims of this Disciplinary Procedure are to provide a framework within which managers can work with employees to maintain satisfactory standards of conduct and to encourage improvement where necessary.

This procedure is used to deal with misconduct. It does not apply to cases involving genuine sickness absence, proposed redundancies or poor performance. If you have difficulty at any stage of the procedure because of a disability, you should discuss this with a member of HR as soon as possible.

Misconduct

Examples of general misconduct include (but are not limited to):

- persistent poor time keeping
- failure to accurately record time/absences on time
- unauthorised absence and/or poor attendance record
- breach of the Information and systems acceptable use Policy
- failure to observe FCA procedures

- unreasonable refusal to follow reasonable instructions or work requests issued by a manager
- failing to deal promptly, efficiently and politely with third parties with whom you have dealings on behalf of the FCA
- rude or abusive behaviour
- failure to maintain effective working relationships
- failure to complete mandatory training

Gross misconduct

Examples of gross misconduct include (but are not limited to):

- fraud, theft, dishonesty or obtaining or attempting to obtain an advantage at the expense of the FCA or any person, firm or organisation that is regulated by the FCA
- offering or accepting bribes under the Bribery Act 2010
- falsification of records, reports, accounts, expense claims or self-certification forms
- physical assault of another employee or member of the public
- damage to or deliberate misuse of company property including use of the Internet
- being under the influence of alcohol, drugs or other substances that impair performance or conduct while at work (including attending any event, whether social or otherwise at FCA premises or elsewhere)
- being convicted of any criminal offence (whether or not relating to employment), which in the opinion of the FCA, seriously undermines the FCA's confidence in you
- deliberate acts of discrimination, harassment, victimisation or bullying or instructing or aiding someone to commit an act of discrimination, harassment, victimisation or bullying in breach of the Equality of Opportunity Policy
- making false statements about one's own or another employee's work, the falsification of working papers, or the making of any statements likely to be detrimental to the reputation of the FCA
- misuse of the Whistleblowing Policy by knowingly raising false and malicious allegations
- subjecting a colleague to a detriment or otherwise victimising a colleague who has raised concerns, made a complaint or given evidence or information under the Whistleblowing Policy or under any other FCA policy or procedure
- repeated failure to comply with a reasonable work request including the request to complete mandatory training
- breach of the FCA's Conflict of Interests policy
- bringing the FCA into disrepute

Investigations

An investigation allows us to establish a fair and balanced view of the facts about any disciplinary allegations against you, before deciding whether to proceed with a disciplinary hearing. The amount of investigation required will depend on the nature of the allegations and will vary from case to case. In some cases, an independent manager or member of the HR Division will be appointed to investigate the allegations. It may involve interviewing and taking statements from you and any witnesses, and/or reviewing relevant documents. Where appropriate, we reserve the right to move straight to a disciplinary hearing.

Investigative interviews are solely for fact-finding and no decision on disciplinary action will be taken until after a disciplinary hearing has been held. We will record investigation meetings and any subsequent formal meeting that falls under this policy. A copy of the transcript will be provided to you afterwards.

You must co-operate fully and promptly in any investigation. This includes informing us of the names of any relevant witnesses, disclosing any relevant documents to us and attending investigative interviews if required.

Criminal allegations

Where your conduct is the subject of a criminal investigation, charge or conviction we will investigate the facts before deciding whether to take formal disciplinary action.

We will not usually wait for the outcome of any prosecution before deciding what action, if any, to take. If you are unable or have been advised not to attend a disciplinary hearing or say anything about a pending criminal matter, we may have to take a decision based on the available evidence.

A criminal investigation, charge or conviction relating to conduct outside work may be treated as a disciplinary matter if we consider that it is relevant to your employment.

Suspension

In some circumstances we may need to suspend you from work. The suspension will be for no longer than is necessary to investigate the allegations and we will confirm the arrangements to you in writing. While suspended you should not visit our premises or contact any of our firms, suppliers, contractors or staff, unless you have been authorised to do so.

Suspension of this kind is not a disciplinary penalty and does not imply that any decision has already been made about the allegations.

Notification of a disciplinary hearing

If we consider there are grounds for disciplinary action, you will be required to attend a disciplinary hearing. We will inform you in writing of the allegations against you, the basis for those allegations, and the likely range of consequences if we decide after the hearing that the allegations are true.

We will give you written notice of the date, time and place of the disciplinary hearing. The hearing will be held as soon as reasonably practicable, but you will be given at least 3 working days' notice of the meeting in order to prepare your case based on the information we have given you. If you fail to attend without good reason, or are persistently unable to do so (for example, for health reasons), we may offer you the opportunity to make written submissions and hold the disciplinary hearing in your absence.

Right to be accompanied

You may bring a companion to any meeting under this procedure. The companion may be either an SCC Representative, another FCA colleague (not a member of HR) or a trade union representative. You should tell the assisting HR representative who your companion is in advance of the meeting.

If your chosen companion is not available for the meeting and will not be available for more than 5 working days afterwards, we may ask you to choose someone else.

Procedure at disciplinary hearings

If you or your companion cannot attend the hearing you should inform us immediately and we will arrange an alternative time. You must make every effort to attend the hearing, and failure to attend without good reason may be treated as misconduct in itself. If you fail to attend without good reason, or are persistently unable to do so (for example for health reasons), we may have to take a decision based on the available evidence.

The hearing will usually be chaired by a line manager, a Head of Department or a Director depending on your contractual grade and the nature of the allegations.

At the disciplinary hearing we will go through the allegations against you and the evidence that has been gathered. You will be able to respond and present any evidence of your own. Your companion may make representations to us and ask questions, but should not answer questions on your behalf. You may confer privately with your companion at any time during the hearing.

We may adjourn the disciplinary hearing if we need to carry out any further investigations such as re-interviewing witnesses in the light of any new points you have raised at the hearing. You will be given a reasonable opportunity to consider any new information obtained before the hearing is reconvened.

We will inform you in writing of our decision and our reasons for it as soon as practicable.

Disciplinary penalties

The usual penalties for misconduct are set out below. Each case will be assessed on its own merits.

You will not normally be dismissed for a first act of misconduct, unless we decide it amounts to gross misconduct or you have not yet completed your probationary period.

Stage 1 - First written warning: it will usually be appropriate for a first act of misconduct where there are no other active written warnings on your disciplinary record.

Stage 2 - Final written warning: it will usually be appropriate for:

- (i) misconduct where there is already an active written warning on your record
- (ii) misconduct that we consider sufficiently serious to warrant a final written warning even though there are no other active warnings on your record

Stage 3 - Dismissal: it will usually only be appropriate for:

- (i) any misconduct during your probationary period
- (ii) further misconduct where there is an active final written warning on your record
- (iii) any gross misconduct regardless of whether there are active warnings on your record. Gross misconduct will usually result in immediate dismissal without notice or payment in lieu of notice (summary dismissal).

Alternatives to dismissal: in some cases we may, at our discretion, consider alternatives to dismissal. These may be accompanied by a final written warning. Examples include:

- demotion
- transfer to another department or job
- a period of suspension without pay

- loss of seniority
- reduction in pay
- loss of future pay increment
- loss of overtime

The effect of a warning

Written warnings will set out the nature of the misconduct, the change in behaviour required, the period for which the warning will remain active, and the likely consequences of further misconduct in that active period.

A first written warning will usually remain active for 6 months and a final written warning will usually remain active for 12 months.

We will keep a record of the warning on file but once it expires we will disregard it for disciplinary purposes.

Please see the FCA's Reference Policy about the disclosure of formal disciplinary sanctions in any enhanced reference given by the FCA in response to a request from a regulated firm for a regulatory reference. In certain circumstances, the reference may also refer to the fact that the employee resigned part-way through a disciplinary process before any conclusion was reached or formal sanction issued. Further information can be found in the Reference Policy.

Appeals

If you feel that disciplinary action taken against you is wrong or unjust you should appeal in writing, stating your full grounds of appeal, to the Employee Relations Manager within 5 working days of the date on which you were informed of the decision.

In your appeal submission, you should make it clear what areas of the original investigation you believe should be reconsidered. Suitable grounds for an appeal could include insufficient investigation of a point, failure to interview key witnesses, failure to consider evidence, or a misunderstanding of evidence provided.

If you are appealing against dismissal, the date on which dismissal takes effect will not be delayed pending the outcome of the appeal. However, if your appeal is successful you will be reinstated with no loss of continuity of employment or pay.

The Employee Relations Manager will be responsible for appointing an appropriate person who has not been previously involved in the case to hear your appeal. The appeal meeting will usually take place within 10 working days of receipt of your written appeal. We will give you at least 3 working days' written notice of the date, time and place of the appeal hearing.

The appeal hearing may be a complete re-hearing of the matter or it may be a review of the fairness of the original decision in the light of the procedure that was followed and any new information. This will be at our discretion depending on the circumstances of your case. In any event the appeal will be dealt with as impartially as possible.

If we need to investigate further in the light of new points you have raised at the hearing we may adjourn the appeal hearing. You will be given a reasonable opportunity to consider any new information before the hearing is reconvened.

Following the appeal hearing we may confirm the original decision, revoke the original decision or substitute a different penalty.

We will inform you in writing of our final decision as soon as practicable. If possible we will also explain this to you in person. There will be no further right of appeal.

Information about an investigation or disciplinary matter must be treated as confidential by all parties.

4.7 Performance management procedure

The primary aim of this procedure is to provide a framework within which managers can work with employees to maintain satisfactory performance standards and to encourage improvement where necessary.

It is our policy to ensure that concerns over performance are dealt with fairly and that steps are taken to establish the facts and to give employees the opportunity to respond at a hearing before any formal action is taken.

Identifying performance issues

In the first instance, performance issues should normally be dealt with informally between you and your line manager as part of day-to-day management. Where appropriate, a note of any such informal discussions should be kept. The formal procedure should be used for more serious cases, or in any case where an earlier informal discussion and intervention has not resulted in a satisfactory improvement. Informal discussions should help:

- (i) clarify the required standards
- (ii) identify areas of concern
- (iii) establish the likely causes of poor performance and identify any training needs
- (iv) set targets for improvement and a time-scale for review

Employees will not normally be dismissed for performance reasons without previous warnings. However, in serious cases of gross negligence, or in any case involving an employee who has not yet completed their probationary period, dismissal without previous warnings may be appropriate.

Formal stage

Notification of a performance review meeting

If we consider that there are grounds for taking formal action over alleged poor performance, you will be required to attend a performance review meeting. We will notify you in writing of our concerns over your performance, the reasons for those concerns, and the likely outcome if we decide after the meeting that your performance has been unsatisfactory. We will also include copies or a summary of any relevant information where appropriate.

We will give you written notice of the date, time and place of the performance review meeting. The meeting will be held as soon as reasonably practicable, but you will be given a reasonable amount of time (at least 3 working days) to prepare your case based on the information we have given you. We will digitally record the meeting and a copy of the transcript will be sent to you.

Right to be accompanied

You may bring a companion to any meeting under this procedure. The companion may be either an SCC Representative, another FCA colleague (not a member of HR) or a trade union representative. You should tell the assisting HR representative who your companion is in advance of the meeting.

If your chosen companion is not available for the meeting and will not be available for more than 5 working days afterwards, we may ask you to choose someone else.

Procedure at performance review meetings

If you cannot attend the performance review meeting you should inform us immediately and we will usually arrange an alternative time. You must make every effort to attend the meeting, and failure to attend without good reason may be treated as misconduct.

If you fail to attend without good reason, or are persistently unable to do so (for example, for health reasons), we may have to take a decision based on the available evidence including any written submissions you have made.

The meeting will normally be held by your line manager and will normally be attended by a member of the HR Division.

The aims of a performance review meeting usually include:

- (i) setting out the required standards that we believe you may have failed to meet, and going through any relevant evidence that we have gathered
- (ii) allowing you to ask questions, present evidence, respond to evidence and make representations
- (iii) establishing the likely causes of poor performance including any reasons why any measures taken so far have not led to the required improvement
- (iv) identifying whether there are further measures, such as additional training or supervision, which may improve performance
- (v) where appropriate, discussing targets for improvement and a time-scale for review
- (vi) if dismissal is a possibility, establishing whether there is any likelihood of a significant improvement being made within a reasonable time and whether there is any practical alternative to dismissal

A performance review meeting may be adjourned if we need to gather any further information or consider matters discussed at the meeting.

We will inform you in writing of our decision and our reasons for it, as soon as practicable after the performance review meeting.

The FCA's formal performance management procedure has 3 stages. In most situations the procedure will move from one stage to the next. There may, however, be occasions where this will not be the case and the process may start at any stage, including the third (and final) performance review meeting.

While any written warning is active, you are required to disclose the matter as part of any internal recruitment process, should you decide to apply for an advertised role.

Stage 1 performance review meeting: first written warning

Following a stage 1 performance review meeting, if we decide that your performance is unsatisfactory, we will give you a first written warning setting out:

- (i) the areas in which you have not met the required performance standards
- (ii) targets for improvement
- (iii) any measures, such as additional training or supervision, which will be taken with a view to improving performance
- (iv) a period for review
- (v) the consequences of failing to improve within the review period, or of further unsatisfactory performance

The warning will normally remain active for 6 months. A record of the warning will be kept on file but it will be disregarded for any future performance review proceedings after 6 months.

Your performance will be monitored during the review period and we will write to inform you of the outcome:

- (i) if your line manager is satisfied with your performance, no further action will be taken
- (ii) if there has been insufficient improvement, the matter may be progressed to a stage 2 performance review meeting
- (iii) if there has been a substantial but insufficient improvement, the review period may be extended

Stage 2 performance review meeting: final written warning

If your performance does not improve within the review period as discussed with your line manager, or if there is further evidence of poor performance while your first written warning is still active, we may decide to hold a stage 2 performance review meeting. We will send you written notification as set out above.

Following a stage 2 performance review meeting, if we decide that your performance is unsatisfactory, we will give you a final written warning, setting out:

- (i) the areas in which you have not met the required performance standards
- (ii) targets for improvement
- (iii) any measures, such as additional training or supervision, which will be taken with a view to improving performance
- (iv) a period for review
- (v) the consequences of failing to improve within the review period, or of further unsatisfactory performance

A final written warning will normally remain active for 12 months. A record of the warning will be kept on file but it will be disregarded in any future performance review proceedings after 12 months. Your performance will be monitored during the review period and we will write to inform you of the outcome:

- (i) if your line manager is satisfied with your performance, no further action will be taken
- (ii) if your line manager feels there has been insufficient improvement, the matter may be progressed to a stage 3 performance review meeting
- (iii) if the manager feels that there has been a substantial but insufficient improvement, the review period may be extended

Stage 3 performance review meeting: dismissal or redeployment

We may hold a stage 3 performance review meeting if we believe:

- (i) your performance has not improved sufficiently within the review period set out in a final written warning
- (ii) your performance is unsatisfactory while a final written warning is still active

- (iii) your performance has been grossly negligent such as to warrant dismissal without the need for a final written warning
- (iv) your performance has sufficiently serious consequences for the FCA

We will send you written notification of the meeting.

Following the performance review meeting, if we find that your performance is unsatisfactory, we may consider a range of options including:

- (i) dismissal
- (ii) extending an active final written warning and setting a further review period (in exceptional cases where we believe a substantial improvement is likely within the review period)
- (iii) issuing a final written warning (where no final written warning is currently active);
- (iv) redeployment to an alternative suitable role, if one is available.

Dismissal will normally be with full notice or payment in lieu of notice, unless your performance has been so negligent as to amount to gross misconduct, in which case we may dismiss you without notice or any pay in lieu.

Appeals against action for poor performance

If you feel that disciplinary action taken against you is wrong or unjust you should appeal in writing, stating your full grounds of appeal, to the Employee Relations Manager within 5 working days of the date on which you were informed of the decision.

If you are appealing against dismissal, the date on which dismissal takes effect will not be delayed pending the outcome of the appeal. However, if your appeal is successful you will be reinstated with no loss of continuity or pay.

The Employee Relations Manager will be responsible for appointing an appropriate person to hear your appeal. This will usually take place within 10 working days of receipt of your written appeal. We will give you at least 3 working days' written notice of the date, time and place of the appeal hearing.

A member of the HR Division will also be present at the appeal hearing. You may bring a companion with you to the appeal hearing (see above).

A hearing may be adjourned if we need to gather any further information or consider matters discussed at the hearing. You will be given a reasonable opportunity to consider any new information before the hearing is reconvened.

Following the appeal hearing we may:

- (i) confirm the original decision
- (ii) revoke the original decision
- (iii) substitute a different penalty

We will inform you in writing of our final decision as soon as practicable following the appeal hearing. If possible we will also explain this to you in person. There will be no further right of appeal.

Information about a performance review procedure must be treated as confidential by all parties.

4.8 Redundancy policy

The FCA will always try to avoid the need for compulsory redundancies but sometimes these may be necessary. If a redundancy situation does arise, our priority is to find alternative roles for affected employees.

Avoiding redundancies

We will always consider steps to minimise potential redundancies. Examples include:

- minimising the use of temporary and agency staff
- restricting recruitment
- providing retraining or redeployment to potentially affected employees
- any other appropriate steps taking into account the circumstances and operational requirements

Making compulsory redundancies

When it is not possible to avoid making compulsory redundancies, we will advise all affected employees and, where appropriate, the Staff Consultative Committee ('SCC') that compulsory redundancies cannot be avoided. We will consult the SCC on the procedure that will then be followed and the criteria that will be applied.

In carrying out any redundancy exercise we will not discriminate directly or indirectly on grounds of gender, sexual orientation, marital or civil partner status, gender reassignment, gender identity or expression, race, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origin, religion or belief, disability or age. Part-time employees and those working under fixed-term contracts will not be treated differently to permanent, full-time comparators.

The criteria used to select those employees who will potentially be made redundant will be objective, transparent and fair and based on the skills required to meet our existing and anticipated business needs.

We will also consult individually with those employees who have been provisionally selected for redundancy.

Where selection for redundancy is confirmed, employees selected for redundancy will be given notice of termination of employment in accordance with their contracts and written confirmation of the payments that they will receive. Employees will be given the opportunity to appeal against this decision.

We will continue to look for alternative employment for redundant employees and inform them of any vacancies that we have until the date their employment is terminated. How potentially redundant employees will be invited to apply for and be interviewed for vacancies will be organised depending on the circumstances existing at the time. Alternative employment may be offered subject to a trial period where appropriate.

Enhanced redundancy payments

If your role is confirmed as redundant and the FCA is not able to offer you alternative employment, a discretionary enhanced redundancy payment (inclusive of any statutory redundancy payment) will normally be granted subject to you signing a settlement agreement under which you agree to waive any legal claims you may have against the FCA.

For a settlement agreement to be valid it is a legal requirement for you to take independent legal advice on its terms and effect. The FCA will contribute towards your legal fees in this regard.

The FCA's priority is always to avoid redundancies and to retain its talent. To this end, we will work with you to identify alternative employment. You are expected to properly consider all offers of alternative employment. If we consider that you have unreasonably failed to co-operate with the redeployment process (including taking part in any trial period) you may cease to be eligible for any enhanced redundancy payment. A refusal or rejection of a role may also forfeit your entitlement to a statutory redundancy payment.

Re-employment

The FCA will not re-employ an individual who has been made redundant from the FCA within a 12 month period from the date of termination of employment. Any re-employment beyond a 12 month period will require the prior approval of the HR Director and the Chief Operating Officer.

4.9 Domestic abuse policy

We want to have a working environment that promotes the view that violence against people is unacceptable and everyone has the right to a life free from abuse in any form. Domestic violence is wholly unacceptable and inexcusable behaviour, and responsibility for domestic violence lies with the perpetrator.

Definition

Domestic abuse is often seen as just physical abuse however in this policy, domestic abuse is defined as 'any incident of controlling, coercive or threatening behaviour, violence or abuse (psychological, physical, sexual, financial or emotional) between individuals over 16 who are, or have been, partners or family members including children, regardless of gender or sexuality.'

For example:

- Physical abuse would include punching, slapping, hitting, biting, pinching, kicking, pulling hair out, pushing, shoving, burning or strangling.
- Emotional abuse is any use of words, voice, action or lack of action meant to control, hurt or demean another person. Emotional abuse typically includes ridicule, intimidation or coercion. Verbal abuse is included within this and covers name-calling and use of abusive language, constant criticism or humiliation, disproportionate anger and irrational blaming of the other person. It can include making excessive calls to work or ignoring someone. The perpetrator may then deny the abuse is happening and/or blame the recipient.
- Financial abuse is the use or misuse of the financial or other monetary resources of the other person. Common examples of financial abuse include controlling shared resources such as bank accounts, withholding money, hiding assets or forging someone's signature on financial documents.

Support

We will be supportive of anyone who has been subjected to domestic abuse, in terms of their existing employment or career development and we aim to enable employees experiencing domestic abuse to remain productive and at work.

We will make every effort to assist an employee experiencing domestic abuse. If an employee needs to be absent from work due to domestic abuse, the length of the absence will be determined by the individual's situation through collaboration with the employee and their line manager and will be in line with other current policies such as flexible working, unpaid leave, parental leave or compassionate leave. We will actively provide support to employees to try to minimise any risk to their safety while at work, if they make it known to us that they are experiencing domestic abuse.

Confidentiality will be maintained and information restricted to those who need to know. However, there are some circumstances in which confidentiality cannot be assured. These are when there are concerns about children or vulnerable adults or where an employer needs to act to protect the safety of employees.

If you are the victim of domestic abuse, your line manager can support you by listening and talking through options available to help you remain productive at work. You can speak with the HR Helpline confidentially about any additional support you may require, and Occupational Health can provide advice on any mental or physical health concerns you may have. You can also contact the confidential Employee Assistance Programme helpline.

In cases where both the victim and perpetrator of domestic abuse work for the FCA we will take appropriate action. Employees charged or convicted in court because of domestic violence and abuse should declare this formally.

4.10 Further support

The FCA is committed to supporting you at all times. Friends, family, colleagues and your manager can often help and support you when times are tough but sometimes you need someone impartial to talk to or someone who can provide you with information and independent or professional help.

4.10.1 Employee Assistance Programme

Our Employee Assistance Programme (EAP), provided by Care First, offers counselling and practical information to all employees (not their relatives or friends) on a range of work and personal issues. It is free of charge and available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and 365 days a year.

You can contact Care First on the freephone number 0800 015 5630 and on the Care First website.

4.10.2 Network groups

Our network groups have an important role in our diversity and inclusion agenda. They provide our people with a platform to share experiences and develop solutions to improve policy and practice on diversity and inclusion within the FCA. We currently have ten network groups each representing our diversity strands:

- Spectrum (Race & Ethnicity)
- Embrace (Disability)
- InsideOut (LGBT+)
- Balance (Gender)
- Carers and Parents Network
- Faith and Roots Network
- International
- Generate
- Elevate
- Social Mobility Network

5. WORK LIFE BALANCE

We recognise that maintaining a work life balance is essential for employees' health and personal relationships, and it can also increase productivity at work. These beliefs are embodied by our value Work Inclusively which underpins our range of Wellbeing Programmes and the policies in this section of the handbook.

5.1 Annual leave policy

Your annual leave entitlement

The organisation's annual leave (holiday) year runs from 1 June to 31 May. If your employment starts or finishes part way through the annual leave year, we will calculate your entitlement during that year on a pro-rata basis.

Your core annual leave entitlement is as set out in your contract of employment.

The first 4 weeks of leave you take in any holiday year will be your statutory leave entitlement in line with the Working Time Regulations 1998.

As set out in this policy, you must take at least your statutory annual leave entitlement (28 days' annual leave inclusive of public and bank holidays for full time employees, pro-rated for part time employees) during the annual leave year in which it accrues. Statutory leave may only be carried over to another annual leave year:

- in cases involving long-term sickness absence
- in cases of maternity, paternity, adoption, parental or shared parental leave
- if otherwise required by law

Any additional core annual leave – or extra days purchased through the Flexible Benefit Scheme – can be carried over into the next annual leave year. This is subject to line manager approval and provided that your total annual leave entitlement for any annual leave year does not exceed 46 days (including public and bank holidays) or 38 days (excluding public and bank holidays), pro-rated for part time employees.

Taking annual leave

All annual leave must be approved in advance by your line manager. We will try to accommodate all reasonable requests for annual leave, taking particular care to accommodate requests for special reasons and events. Please give as much notice as possible and at least twice the length of the leave requested (for example, 10 days' notice for a request for 5 days' leave). You should not make travel bookings until approval has been given.

We encourage you to take at least 1 break of 2 consecutive working weeks within each annual leave year as this allows you to take a break from work to support your physical and mental wellbeing.

Requests for annual leave in excess of 2 working weeks will require more detailed discussion with your manager to assess the impact of your absence and ensure that business needs can be met. Where there are genuine business reasons, it may not be possible to approve such a request.

Sickness during periods of annual leave

If you are sick or injured during a period of annual leave and would have been incapable of work, you may choose to treat the period of incapacity as sick leave and reclaim the affected days of annual leave.

You will only be paid sick pay if you comply with our Sickness Absence Policy, including notifying your manager immediately of your incapacity and obtaining medical evidence, even if you are abroad.

Dishonest claims or other abuse of this policy will be treated as misconduct under our disciplinary procedure.

Long-term sickness absence and annual leave entitlement

Annual leave entitlement continues to accrue during periods of sick leave.

If you are on a period of sick leave which spans 2 annual leave years, or if you return to work after sick leave so close to the end of the leave year that you cannot reasonably take your remaining days, you may carry over unused annual leave to the following leave year.

- Carry over under this rule is limited to the 4 week minimum holiday entitlement under UK law (which includes bank holidays), less any leave taken during the holiday year that has just ended
- If you have taken 4 weeks' holiday by the end of the holiday year, you will not be allowed to carry anything over under this rule
- If you have taken less than 4 weeks, the remainder may be carried over under this rule. For example, a full time employee who has taken 2 weeks' holiday plus 2 bank holidays before starting long-term sick leave can only carry over 1 week and 3 days. Any annual leave carried over under this rule but not taken within 18 months of the end of the annual leave year in which it accrued will be lost.

Alternatively you can choose to take your 4-week minimum paid annual leave during your sick leave, in which case you will be paid at your normal rate.

Family leave and annual leave entitlement

Annual leave entitlement continues to accrue during periods of maternity, paternity, adoption, parental or shared parental leave (referred to collectively in this policy as family leave).

If you are planning a longer period of family leave that is likely to last beyond the end of the annual leave year, you should discuss your annual leave plans with your manager in good time before starting your family leave. You should unless not reasonably practicable, use up your remaining annual leave before you start your family leave as annual leave should be taken in the current annual leave year. If any annual leave entitlement for the year that cannot reasonably be taken before starting your family leave it can be carried over to the next annual leave year.

Annual leave accrued whilst on family leave should also be taken before you return to work, at the end of your family leave period. Essentially adding your annual leave to the end of your family leave to ensure you remain within the maximum of 38 days (pro-rated) (including any days carried over) in any annual leave year (excluding public bank holiday).

Arrangements on joining and leaving the FCA

If you join the FCA part way through the annual leave year, your leave entitlement will be pro-rated.

On termination of employment you may be required to use any remaining annual leave entitlement during your notice period. Alternatively, you will be paid in lieu of any accrued but untaken annual leave entitlement for the current leave year to date, plus any annual leave carried over from previous years under this policy or as required by law. You are entitled to be paid at a full-time rate of 1/260th of your base salary for each day of untaken entitlement (prorated for part-time workers). If you have taken more annual leave than you have accrued, a deduction will be made from your final salary payment.

You will only receive payment for accrued but untaken statutory annual leave entitlement if you are dismissed for gross misconduct or you leave the FCA without giving notice in line with your contract of employment. Further, any leave you have already taken during that final leave year will be deemed to be statutory leave (up to a maximum of 28 days).

Part-time employees

If you work on a part-time basis you are entitled to bank and public holidays on a pro-rata basis to reflect the number of days per week which you normally work.

Please see Pulse for further details on your entitlement.

5.2 Time off for personal circumstance

Our approach

We understand that all colleagues have responsibilities outside of work and that unexpected events can happen to all of us. Our aim is to support colleagues to balance their personal and work responsibilities, including where they have ongoing caring responsibilities or when they face certain unexpected or distressing events in their personal life.

Policy statement

This policy reflects and exceeds all relevant legislative requirements. We are proud of the support it offers to colleagues in ensuring that they can strike a positive work-life balance throughout their employment with us.

We know that not all family set ups are the same, we do not all attach the same importance to different relationships as each other, we do not all process grief or trauma in the same way, and we do not all share the same faith or beliefs. Requests will be considered sensitively and sympathetically, acknowledging this difference while aiming to achieve fairness and equity.

We recognise that matters covered by this policy may be deeply personal and can be difficult to talk about in a work environment. We are committed to fostering a workplace culture where colleagues can safely discuss these matters. Colleagues are encouraged to be open and honest with their managers, so that we can make sure they can access the support available.

This policy provides for up to 10 days' paid leave (pro rata) at line manager discretion and a further 10 days' paid leave (pro rata) with additional approval from the head of department (HoD) or director, in any rolling twelve-month period, for the following purposes:

- carer leave
- challenging personal events
- compassionate
- dependant emergencies
- domestic abuse
- domestic emergencies
- miscarriage and baby loss
- parental bereavement

For colleagues with ongoing caring responsibilities, this policy exists to provide some additional time away from work to help them balance their personal and work responsibilities.

For colleagues dealing with unexpected events, this policy exists to support them through the initial impact of such events. It complements other policies that exist to support with any ongoing impact, such as annual leave, statutory unpaid parental leave, sickness absence, career leave or flexible working.

While we want to support colleagues wherever possible, we must also make sure we have adequate business and operational capacity. Therefore, we reserve the right to decline leave requests in full or in part, where there is a justifiable business reason to do so, if the colleague is still able to work.

Any misuse of the leave entitlements outlined in this policy, or any fraudulent or negligent provision of information, will be regarded as misconduct and dealt with under the Disciplinary policy and procedure.

This policy applies to all employees, irrespective of length of service.

The accompanying procedure sets out the process for requesting leave and considering leave requests.

5.3 Time off to welcome a child

Our approach

We recognise the benefits of having a diverse and inclusive workforce and supporting a positive work-life balance, and we are committed to being an organisation where you can succeed as both a parent and a professional.

We also know that not all family set ups are the same and not all parenthood journeys are as we might have planned or hoped. Across our policies, we aim to support you in whatever happens.

We are proud to have an approach that supports diverse family structures, that actively promotes gender equality and shared family responsibilities, and that recognises the value of time spent bonding with your child in those early months together.

Policy statement

We offer equalised paid leave for all parents, providing up to 20 weeks of fully paid leave across maternity, partner (paternity), adoption, surrogacy, and shared parental leave, where the colleague meets the eligibility requirements for statutory pay. We also offer paid time off to attend certain relevant appointments. Our inclusive policy reflects all relevant legislative requirements and, in many areas, exceeds them.

Whilst all requests will be considered sympathetically, certain types of leave are discretionary and business needs must always be considered.

Any misuse of the leave provision outlined in this policy, or any fraudulent or negligent provision of information, will be regarded as misconduct and dealt with under the Disciplinary policy and procedure.

This policy applies to all eligible employees, regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression.

Full details on the eligibility for leave and pay, and your rights when taking time off to welcome a child can be found in the accompanying procedure.

5.4 Parental leave policy

We recognise and respect that there will be occasions when working parents wish to take time off work to care for or spend time with their child or children.

Eligibility

To take a period of parental leave in relation to a child you must:

- (i) have legal parental responsibility for a child under the age of 18; and
- (ii) have completed 1 year's qualifying service with the FCA by the time you want to take the leave

Length of leave

The law provides that you may take up to 18 weeks of unpaid leave per child, subject to the eligibility requirements above. Any parental leave taken while working for another employer counts towards the 18 weeks entitlement. You may take this leave at any time up until the child's 18th birthday and a maximum of 4 weeks' leave per child may be taken per year. Parental leave is for each child so, for example, if you have two children you may apply to take 4 weeks' leave per child per year (pro-rated for part time employees).

The FCA will normally provide you with more flexibility when taking parental leave by giving you the option to take up to a total of 18 weeks' parental leave in relation to one or more children in 1 calendar year (pro-rated for part time employees) unless:

- this immediately follows a period of other extended leave (for example, maternity or adoption leave or career leave) or

- you wish to take parental leave in respect of 5 or more qualifying children in which case you are entitled to take up to 4 weeks' leave per child (and thus exceed the usual maximum of 18 weeks in 1 calendar year)

Taking parental leave

You can choose to take parental leave any time up until the child's 18th birthday. You must give your line manager notice of your intention to take parental leave.

You must take your parental leave in blocks of whole weeks, except in the case of children with disabilities, where you can request odd days.

You must give us 21 days' notice by completing the Unpaid Parental Leave request via Workday .

We can postpone your leave (see below) except when you give notice to take it immediately after the time your child is born or is placed with your family for adoption.

We may ask you to confirm that you are the parent or the person who is legally responsible for the child. Any such request will be reasonable and we will not check your entitlement every time you ask for leave.

Postponement of parental leave

If your manager believes your absence would unduly disrupt the business, or where other circumstances dictate, we may postpone your leave by up to 6 months. Your manager will discuss this with you and confirm the postponement arrangements in writing within 7 days after your notice to take leave. This will give the reason for the postponement and set out the new dates of parental leave. The length of the leave will be equivalent to your original request.

When you apply to take parental leave immediately after the birth or adoption of a child, the FCA cannot postpone the leave.

Parental leave is unpaid and your contractual terms relating to pay and benefits (save as set out below) are suspended during parental leave. For the duration of your leave, you will not be paid salary or your flex monthly account. Please note that, if your leave commences after the first working day of the month, you will be paid your full monthly flex allowance for that month regardless of the day in the month your leave commences ie the allowance will not be pro-rated. If your leave commences on the first working day of the month, you will not receive your monthly flex allowance. On return from your leave and to receive the full monthly flex allowance you will need to return to work by the 1st working day of the month. If your return to work is after the 1st working day of the month, you will receive your full monthly flex amount with effect from the following month. It will not be pro-rated or backdated.

You will continue to receive the following benefits during your leave:

- (i) core life assurance (2x salary)
- (ii) statutory holiday (28 days including bank holidays for full-time employees) continues to accrue
- (iii) death in service benefits associated with being a member of the FCA Pension Plan (if applicable)

Please refer to the Salary and Benefits Policy for more information on pay and benefits in connection with parental leave.

Returning from parental leave

At the end of parental leave, you have the right to return to the same job if you take 4 weeks or less of leave. If you take more than 4 weeks parental leave (or if you take a shorter period of leave but immediately after additional maternity leave/adoption leave), you are entitled to return to the same job or if that is not reasonably practicable, to a suitable and appropriate alternative role on terms which are no less favourable.

5.5 Hybrid working policy

Introduction

We recognise that a hybrid working approach, offering greater flexibility in where colleagues work is the best way to work effectively and inclusively for the benefit of everyone.

Coming together in an office environment offers real benefits such as on the job learning, supervision, in-person collaboration and downtime opportunities with each other. It is also important that we are in the office for important events such as performance conversations and meeting new joiners to our teams. The benefits are felt both by individuals and those around them. Working from home can offer benefits such as a better environment for focused work and reducing the time spent commuting.

This policy applies to all employees. For those working at the PSR, a variation to the minimum working time required in the office applies. Further information can be found on the PSR Hub.

Hybrid working

We are offering employees greater flexibility in where you work.

All employees need to spend a minimum of 40% of their working time each month at one of our office locations. We expect senior leaders to spend a minimum of 50% of their working time each month.

Due to business need some employees and teams may be required to work more than the 40% minimum standard in the office, whether on a temporary or permanent basis. If you fall into this category your line manager will discuss this with you directly.

All employees will need to be flexible in accordance with the needs of the business. The business need may change over time. We will be led by the business need and a desire to meet reasonable individual preferences as far as possible.

You may be required to attend the office on specific days or to attend meetings. Where possible your line manager will provide you with notice in advance however, there may be times when you will be required to attend the office at short notice.

Your primary place of work will remain the office location set out in your contract of employment. In common with many other policies and practices, we reserve the right in future to change, vary or withdraw arrangements if there is a business need and with reasonable notice.

Sickness absence

When working remotely, you should not work if you are unwell. If you are sick and unable to work, please refer to the sickness absence policy.

Hybrid working and periods of leave

When employees are out of the office on a period of leave including annual leave, sickness leave, paid and unpaid leave you will not be required to meet the minimum 40% standard within the month. For example, if you are out of the office on annual leave for half of the month you will only be required to apply the 40% minimum standard based on the remaining half of the month.

Requesting flexible working

This policy focuses on how the FCA operates our hybrid working arrangements. There are many other forms of flexible working. You retain the right to make an informal or formal request for flexible working as detailed in our Flexible Working policy.

Reasonable adjustments

If you have a health condition that may impact your mental or physical health by returning to the office, please speak to your line manager in the first instance. They will work with you to make an Occupational Health referral to ensure you receive support and reasonable adjustments are put in place. For further details please review the guidance available on Pulse.

5.6 Flexible working policy

All FCA employees have the right to formally apply to work flexibly.

If they don't wish to use the formal application route, employees may also choose to make an informal request to work flexibly. However, in this instance, the line manager's decision will be final and there will be no right to appeal.

There is no automatic right to work flexibly, as there will always be circumstances when the FCA is unable to accommodate a desired work pattern. However, this policy aims to facilitate discussion and to encourage both parties to find a mutually agreeable solution. Each request will be considered seriously and assessed on its own merits.

Flexible working may incorporate a number of possible changes to working arrangements such as a reduction or variation of working hours or the days worked or starting a job share.

Informal request

Employees may also choose to make an informal request to their line manager who will consider it according to our business and operational requirements.

To help your line manager consider your request:

- Make your request in writing and confirm whether you wish any change to your current working pattern to be temporary or permanent.
- Provide as much information as you can about your current and desired working pattern, including working days, hours and start and finish times, and give the date from which you want your desired working pattern to start.
- Provide information about whether your request to work flexibly may be subject to change, for example, to respond to the changing needs of a sick relative who is dependent on you.
- You may choose to include additional information, such as what you see as the benefits to both you and the organisation and how any potential issues might be addressed but there is no requirement for you to do so.

Your line manager will advise you what steps will be taken to consider your request, which may include inviting you to attend a meeting, before advising you of the outcome of your request.

Making a formal request

To make a request you must complete the Flexible Working Request form on Workday. You can only make two formal requests in any 12-month rolling period – if you have already made two applications in this period, you may instead choose to make an informal application, as set out above.

The process and timescales for a formal flexible working request are set out in the flowchart below.

You may choose to include additional information, such as what you see as the benefits to both you and the organisation and how any potential issues might be addressed but there is no requirement for you to do so. It will not impact your application if you chose not to.

Flexible working request process

You must submit a written application via the Flexible Working Request form on workday.

A meeting will be held, normally within 15 working days, between you, your line manager and an HR representative to discuss the request in further detail. You may bring a colleague to this meeting with you.

Under the formal procedure, we will digitally record the meeting and send you a copy of the transcript.

If you fail to attend this meeting twice, your request will be considered withdrawn and this will be confirmed in writing.

The FCA will consider the benefits of the change for you and for the organisation, and weigh those against any adverse impact.

A request may be rejected for any of the following reasons:

1. the burden of additional cost
2. an inability to reorganise work among existing staff
3. an inability to recruit additional staff
4. a detrimental impact on quality
5. a detrimental impact on performance
6. a detrimental effect on ability to meet customer demand
7. insufficient work for the periods you propose to work
8. a planned structural change to the organisation

Where more than one request is received from different employees, they will be considered in the order they are received. In some cases, it may be that the first request is granted and this changes the business context in which the second request can be considered.

Request accepted (or where we propose alternative arrangements)

Details will be confirmed in writing. The new arrangement will usually be subject to a 6 month trial period. The FCA reserves the right to return you to your previous working pattern for the reasons above.

At the end of the trial period, if it is agreed that that new arrangements are working the application will be accepted. This will mean a permanent change to your terms and conditions of employment, unless agreed otherwise.

Request rejected – you have the right to appeal in writing within 5 working days of the notification of the refusal.

Your appeal should give the main reasons why you believe the decision is unjustified and be submitted to the manager who refused your request, copying in the HR Helpline.

The appeal will be heard by your line manager's manager or another independent person appointed by HR. You may bring a colleague to this meeting.

The outcome of the appeal will be communicated to you in writing.

Flexible working arrangements will not necessarily transfer from one job to another. Different roles may not be suitable to being carried out on the same flexible working arrangement as your current role, so this will be reassessed at the time.

Working from home

We recognise that homeworking can be beneficial to both employees and the organisation. Depending on the nature of your role and the needs of the business, homeworking may be agreed with your manager on an informal or formal basis. Line managers will have overall responsibility for considering homeworking requests and assessing whether the role and other factors make such an arrangement suitable and appropriate.

The following principles will apply:

- Employees will have responsibility for ensuring they have a suitable environment at home in which they can focus on work. Employees must be able to work free from disruption, eg by having adequate care arrangements in place for dependants and should ensure they have an appropriate workstation.
- It is the employee's responsibility to undertake a risk assessment of their activities and working environment when working on a regular basis at home. This will normally be undertaken via self-assessment through completion of the Risk Assessment form on a yearly basis.
- Homeworking must not put additional burden on colleagues who are working in the office.
- Employees are required to comply with all FCA policies and procedures (eg those relating to records management, clear desk and the security of information) whether working at home or at their office base.
- Withdrawal of a homeworking arrangement will be undertaken in consultation with the employee and reasonable notice will be given, where practicable. Homeworking arrangements can be withdrawn if, in the opinion of the relevant line manager, the effective and efficient operation of the team is compromised, and/or the role changes, the performance of someone who regularly works from home is unsatisfactory and/or the benefit is being abused.
- Homeworking arrangements will not transfer from one job to another, since different roles may not be equally suitable to being carried out in part remotely.
- Employees' normal working hours will apply unless otherwise agreed by your line manager or other arrangements have been made as the result of a formal Flexible Working application.
- It is not appropriate for people to work at home as an alternative to taking sick leave if they are ill. It is important that people only work at home if they are genuinely fit for work.
- All employees working at home must comply with the FCA's Sickness Policy and ensure that they make personal contact with their line manager, or deputy, within 30 minutes of their normal start time if they are sick or unable to work.
- Expenses incurred due to working from home that are outside the FCA's Travel and Expenses Policy, will have to be met by employees.
- Employees should ensure that their building/contents insurance is not invalidated by using the home as a place of work, or by the storage/use of FCA equipment. The FCA does not accept liability for damage caused to the home or its contents.
- Those working at home on a regular basis should seek advice from the relevant agencies regarding the effect of home working on their mortgage or tenancy agreement, and council tax/business rates. The FCA does not accept any responsibility for an employee who suffers any detriment, loss or legal action as a consequence of not obtaining the necessary permissions from their insurer, mortgage lender, landlord or local authority.

- Employees who have a regular homeworking arrangement may be required to be flexible and change their arrangement to suit business needs.
- Employees working at home should be contactable during the agreed working day, unless specifically agreed in advance with their line manager.

5.7 Flexitime policy

We operate a flexitime scheme for certain employees at the Professional Support contractual grade who are in the Professional Support or Senior Professional Support grade level. Employees eligible to participate in the flexitime scheme (as indicated in their Personal Statements) must comply with the rules of the scheme.

Flexitime scheme rules

The rules of the scheme are detailed below. These rules are subject to work requirements. Limitations may be made at the discretion of your line manager.

The accounting period will be a calendar month. Calculations are based your contractual hours as outlined in your Personal Statement. Unless otherwise stated, your normal working hours are 35 hours each week (excluding lunch breaks), Monday to Friday, with one hour each day for lunch. We reserve the right to vary your normal working hours, if necessary, to fulfil our operational requirements.

- On a normal working day, you should start work no later than 10.00 am and should not finish before 4.00 pm.
- Weekly timecards should be completed on a timely and accurate basis. Data recorded should reflect actual hours worked by activity performed and be submitted as per the agreed deadline. Only the actual hours worked should be recorded in iTime (net hours) minus any breaks when you are away from your desk (ie lunch, cigarette, coffee breaks).
- The lunch interval should be of at least 30 minutes duration and recorded accurately in iTime. For example if you worked 10 am - 4 pm (minus 30 minutes for lunch) 5.5 hours should be recorded in iTime.
- Excess hours registered at the end of the accounting period up to a maximum of 10 hours may be carried forward to the next accounting period. Excess hours will not rank for overtime payment nor affect holiday, pension or any other entitlement.
- A maximum of 10 debit hours may be carried forward at the end of an accounting period. The maximum debit hours permitted at any time during a period is 14 hours. If you are in a debit situation any authorised overtime worked will offset this balance and payment will not be made.
- Credit hours may be taken as 2 half days or 1 whole day absence from the office per calendar month. However, no more than 12 half or 6 whole 'flexiday' absences are permitted between 1 June and 31 May.
- Proposed absence for whole or half 'flexidays' is subject to cancellation by management to ensure adequate operational cover.
- If you leave the FCA's employment you must ensure that your hours are not in debit. Any remaining deficit of hours will be deducted from your final salary.
- Loss of working time due to travelling difficulties such as late trains, traffic hold-ups and other such hazards should not be included in your working hours and you should discuss with your line manager how any shortfall in contractual hour is made up.

- Treatment and general examination by opticians, doctors, dentists, etc should be recorded as BS Absence Sickness & Medical and you should discuss with your line manager how any shortfall in contractual hours is made up.
- Authorised sickness absence should be recorded to reflect your contractual hours (ie 7 hours per day if you work 35 hours) and recorded as BS full day sickness.
- Part day sickness absence should be recorded as BS Absence Sickness & Medical for the time absent during that day.
- Authorised leave should be recorded to reflect your contractual hours (ie 7 hours if you work 35 hours) and should be recorded as BS Absence Leave and Public holidays.
- Authorised half day leave should be recorded as 3 hours 30 minutes. AM half day leave - you should arrive for work no later than 2 pm. PM half day leave - you should not leave the office earlier than 12pm. Annual leave should be recorded as BS Absence - Leave&Other absence.

Please remember to accurately record your net working hours (ie working hours minus any breaks). Failure to do so could result in disciplinary action up to and including your dismissal from the FCA (see the Disciplinary Procedure).

5.8 Career leave policy

We are committed to being a flexible employer as a method of helping us to retain valued employees. We recognise that there may be times when you wish to take an extended period of absence to pursue personal interests or domestic duties such as caring for a family member. Career leave can be used for any purpose except taking paid employment.

The information below explains our career leave policy which offers you the opportunity to request between 4 and 52 weeks unpaid leave. Approval is at the discretion of managers and must also be signed off by your Director or ExCo member (where relevant) and may be refused, or the timing deferred, due to business needs. It can be combined with either annual leave or parental leave but the total time away from work must not exceed 26 weeks where you have up to 2 years' service or 52 weeks where you have 3 or more years' continuous service.

Eligibility criteria

You may apply for between 4 and 52 weeks' unpaid career leave. The leave must be taken in 1 continuous block. It can be combined with either annual leave or parental leave but the total time away from work must not exceed 26 weeks where you have up to 2 years' service or 52 weeks where you have 3 or more years' continuous service.

You must meet the following criteria to be eligible to apply for career leave:

- you must have 2 or more years' continuous service to request career leave between 4 and 26 weeks
- you must have 3 or more years' satisfactory continuous service to request career leave between 26 and 52 weeks
- you must not have a live warning under either the Disciplinary Procedure or the Performance Management Procedure
- your last 2 appraisal ratings must have been a 3 rating for above
- you must have completed 3 years' continuous service after returning from any previous period of career leave
- you must not have had any continuous period of absence/leave of 4 weeks or more within the last 12 months

Eligibility for career leave does not aggregate. For example, if you have had 8 years of service and have not taken career leave within this time, you will still only be eligible to 1 period of leave.

Due to legal requirement those individuals on a tier 2 visa are not eligible to take career leave.

Employment status

During career leave, you will remain our employee and will remain subject to all required standards of conduct and behaviour, including conflicts of interest, security, compliance and confidentiality.

While on career leave you may not take up any paid employment without our express prior written permission, which will only be given in exceptional circumstances. To do so, will be regarded as gross misconduct and may lead to your dismissal.

During your career leave, your continuity of service will be unaffected.

Terms, conditions and benefits during career leave

All career leave is unpaid. You will not receive any base salary or flex account during your leave.

Your annual leave will be pro-rated up to the commencement of your career leave and you can only take the leave accrued up to that point. On your return your absence plan will be updated to reflect the leave accrued from your return date to the end of the holiday year.

If your leave starts after the first working day of the month, you will be paid your full monthly flex allowance for that month, regardless of the day in the rest of the month that your leave starts, ie the allowance will not be pro-rated. If your leave starts on the first working day of the month, you will not receive your monthly flex allowance. On return from your leave and to receive the full monthly flex allowance you will need to return to work by the first working day of the month. If your return to work is after the first working day of the month, you will receive your full monthly flex amount with effect from the following month. It will not be pro-rated or backdated.

If you are a member of the FCA Pension Plan, contributions will not be paid for the duration of the career leave.

You will not be entitled to any core or flexible benefits for the period of the career leave, except for:

- core Life Assurance
- death in service benefits associated with being a member of the FCA Pension Plan.

It may also be possible for you to maintain private medical cover, by agreeing to pay the premiums upfront for the duration of career leave.

Payment of any of the above benefits will be calculated on your base salary at the start of your career leave.

In the absence of additional benefits (which you may have selected prior to your career leave) it is your responsibility to ensure that you are adequately protected.

Any outstanding season ticket loan or other payments you owe will be deducted from your final salary payment before the start of your career leave.

While on career leave you will be eligible to be considered for Pay Review. Any salary increase will be deferred until the end of your leave. Please see the Salary and Benefits Policy for more information on pay and benefits in connection with career leave.

If you fall ill while on career leave, you will not be entitled to occupational sick pay. If you qualify, you will be entitled to Statutory Sick Pay.

Any qualifying periods associated with selected benefits (such as Permanent Health Insurance, Life Assurance and Critical Illness) may need to be restarted following career leave. Please log-in to your My FCA Benefits and read the Policy documentation for more information.

Change in circumstances

If, during the period of your career leave, your role is affected by a business restructure you will be included. If your role is made redundant while on career leave the redundancy policy will apply. Any redundancy payment will be calculated based on your base salary at the start of your career leave.

If you or your partner become pregnant or adopt a child while on career leave and you wish to take time off to welcome the child, you should contact the HR Helpline as soon as possible. A period of such time off will bring your career leave to an end, and the balance of the career leave will be lost. Your entitlement to pay for statutory or enhanced maternity, partner (paternity), adoption or shared parental may be affected by your decision to take career leave. For further details please see the Time off to welcome a child procedure.

Return to work after career leave

You should contact your manager at least 4 weeks before the end of your career leave to discuss the arrangements for your return to work.

You will, where possible, return to the same or a similar job as the one that you left, on terms and conditions of employment that are no less favourable.

If you wish to return to work earlier than originally intended, you need to agree this with your line manager. Please ensure that you contact your line manager at least 4 weeks before your desired return date. Your request to return early cannot be guaranteed. You must also inform the HR Helpline before the first working day of the month that you intend to return to work so that your salary can be reinstated.

If you fail to return from career leave on the pre-arranged date without good reason, this will be unauthorised absence, which could result in disciplinary action up to and including your dismissal (see the Disciplinary Procedure).

Process

Approval for career leave is at our discretion and may be refused, or the timing deferred, due to business reasons.

Requests for career leave should be discussed and agreed with your manager. To support your request, your manager will need to make a commitment to, wherever possible, making sure that a role will be available upon your return. If no such commitment can be given, your request will not be supported or approved. If your manager can support your request, you should raise an Unpaid Career Leave Absence request via Workday, ensuring that you confirm the reason for the career break. If supported by your line manager, the request must then be approved by your Director or ExCo member (where relevant) via email.

You should usually make a request for career leave at least 3 months in advance. There will, however, be exceptions to this and you should discuss situations where you need the leave more quickly with your manager.

You will receive a letter outlining the terms and conditions of the career break. Read this letter carefully. If you have any questions speak to the HR Helpline before signing it.

During career leave, your manager and the HR Helpline will be the initial points of contact for all matters regarding career leave and your employment with the organisation. Before you go on career leave, you must provide us with up-to-date contact details and agree how you can be contacted during this period (for example, by phone, email or in writing).

5.9 International Working Policy

If you are a permanent or fixed term contract employee, you may request to work abroad temporarily if there is an exceptional reason for you to do so, such as visiting a sick relative or responding to a family emergency overseas. As there is no business requirement for colleagues to work abroad, there is no guarantee that any such request will be granted. Further any requests under this policy should be combined with a reasonable period of annual leave.

You may request to work for up to 4 weeks (20 working days), prorated in a rolling 12-month period. This may be split over a number of trips but cannot exceed the 4 weeks (20 working days) maximum total in any rolling 12-month period.

In a small number of cases, we may need to review the time you have previously spent in the country, in a personal capacity. This will be determined by the local tax legislation and we will advise you of any requirements as part of the application process.

To apply to work internationally you will need to discuss your request and exceptional circumstances with your line manager in the first instance. When you have done so, and assuming you have your line manager's informal approval in principle, you will then need to submit a formal International working application to be approved by your Head of Department.

Approval of any such application shall be granted at the sole discretion of the FCA/PSR and any decision to reject an application is final. Further, simply because a request has been granted in the past does not mean that any future applications will automatically be granted.

For security and other reasons, there will be some countries that we are unable to approve international working for, regardless of your personal circumstances. This includes countries where the FCO declare all but essential travel. These countries change from time to time and your Head of Department will be responsible for undertaking the necessary check upon application.

As part of any request to work remotely overseas, you should be aware that you will be solely responsible for:

- seeking FCO advice and guidance on travelling abroad, the latest government travel advice in the country you are visiting and discussing any issues with your manager
- considering any immigration and Visa requirements and restrictions for the country you are proposing to work from and making any necessary arrangements as part of your request
- considering any social security or other similar requirements for the country you are proposing to work from
- considering any relevant tax issues, both in the UK and those taxes in the country in which you wish to work temporarily and ensuring you comply with the necessary tax requirements
- demonstrating that you can continue to work effectively from overseas, for example showing how you will manage the impact of any time zone difference
- ensuring and demonstrating that you will be able to safeguard any FCA/PSR property that you may need to take with you and that you will be able to maintain confidentiality and preserve data security at all times
- ensuring and demonstrating that you have a suitable place to work and are able to assure your manager that you will 'Do No Harm' whilst working remotely

- any expenses associated with working remotely overseas. This includes but is not limited to expenses such as insurance (of all types e.g. travel, medical, health), furniture, travel costs (to and from the destination and those incurred if asked to return to the UK for work purposes).
- making arrangements on return to the UK, i.e. any requirements around quarantine.

If your application is approved by your Head of Department, you should discuss with your line manager how you will keep in contact during your period of working overseas. This is particularly relevant in certain time zones which will require you to work flexibly in order to make yourself available to participate in FCA/PSR business as you would do if you were in the UK. You also need to ensure your personal contact details are up to date in Workday.

If, having commenced a period of working from abroad you are unable to continue to work remotely overseas (for example where IT equipment cannot be fixed remotely and/or due to other issues), you will need to discuss your options with your line manager. Such options would include you returning to the UK earlier than planned or taking annual/unpaid leave for the remainder of time that you have agreed to work abroad. You need to ensure that you use your annual leave in line with the FCA Annual leave policy and take the maximum carry over into consideration when requesting to work abroad.

6. HEALTH AND WELLBEING

The health, safety and wellbeing of our employees is of paramount importance to us. This section of the handbook supplements our Wellbeing Programmes, and comprises a range of policies to support our employees through periods of sickness, when attending medical or dental appointments, or through life events outside their work at the FCA. These policies are underpinned by our value Work Inclusively.

6.1 Sickness absence policy

The FCA is keen to encourage employees to maximise their attendance and performance at work while recognising that there will be occasions when this is not possible due to absence caused by sickness or incapacity.

Sickness absence can vary from short intermittent periods of ill-health to a continuous period of long-term absence and have many different causes (for example, injuries, recurring conditions, or a serious illness requiring lengthy treatment).

We wish to ensure that the reasons for sickness absence are understood in each case and investigated where necessary. In addition, where needed and reasonably practicable, we will take measures to assist those who have been absent when they are ready to return to work.

The FCA provide a comprehensive range of wellbeing benefits and aim to treat employees who are sick with dignity and respect, providing support, counselling, tailored rehabilitation programmes and (if appropriate and practicable) workplace adjustments that may assist that individual to continue productive employment with the FCA.

If an employee is frequently and persistently absent or is absent for a lengthy period, this can have a negative impact on the delivery of departmental objectives and colleagues who must carry the burden of extra work. This policy is designed to ensure a balance is struck between ensuring adequate support for employees who are ill and the ability to fulfil business obligations.

At the FCA:

- 'short-term sickness absence' means any period of sickness between 1 and 6 calendar days (a fit note will be required beyond 7 calendar days)
- 'long-term sickness absence' means any period of sickness (continuous or aggregated) lasting 66 working days or more

We monitor absence levels including recurring sickness absence. Generally, where the 'trigger points' are reached of 10 working days lost in any 12 month rolling period or 5 separate occasions of sickness absence in any 12 month rolling period, we will work with you to understand the nature of the illness and to seek to minimise future absences, which could include a referral to Occupational Health. These 'trigger points' do not apply to disability or pregnancy-related illnesses which will be assessed on a case-by-case basis by line managers in conjunction with HR, working closely with Occupational Health as appropriate.

For more information on managing sickness, please refer to the Manager's Guide to Dealing with Sickness Absence.

Disabilities

We are aware that sickness absence may result from a disability. If you consider that you are affected by a disability or any medical condition which affects your ability to undertake your work, you should inform the HR Helpline and/or your line manager. Any information you provide will be handled in a confidential manner.

At each stage of the sickness absence management procedure, consideration will be given to whether there are reasonable adjustments that could be made to the requirements of a job or other aspects of working arrangements that will provide support at work and/or assist a return to work.

Sickness absence reporting procedure

If you are taken ill or injured while at work you should inform your line manager.

If you cannot attend work because you are ill or injured you should telephone your line manager as early as possible and by 9:30am. You should inform them of the nature of your illness or injury, the expected length of your absence from work and any outstanding or urgent work that requires attention.

Unless agreed otherwise, you should telephone your line manager on each working day of sickness for the first 7 calendar days (excluding weekends). You should expect to remain in contact during your absence with your line manager and/or HR who will want to enquire after your health and be advised, if possible, as to your expected return date.

Evidence of incapacity

For absence up to 7 calendar days, you must record your absence on Workday and participate in a return to work meeting.

For absence of more than a week (7 calendar days): you must obtain a certificate from your doctor (a 'Statement of Fitness for Work' known as a 'Fit Note') stating that you are not fit to work and the reason why. This should be forwarded to your line manager without delay. If your absence continues, further Fit Notes must be provided to cover the whole period of absence.

For sickness absence beyond 7 days, managers will update Workday and contact individuals to confirm keeping in touch arrangements.

If your doctor provides a certificate stating that you 'may be fit for work' you should inform your line manager immediately. We will discuss with you any additional measures that may be needed to facilitate your return to work, taking account of your doctor's advice. This may take place at a return-to-work meeting. If appropriate measures cannot be taken, you will remain on sick leave and we will set a date to review the situation.

If we are concerned about the reason for absence, or frequent short-term absence, we may require a medical certificate for each absence regardless of duration. In such circumstances, we will cover any costs incurred in obtaining such medical certificates, for absences of a week or less, on production of a doctor's invoice.

Unauthorised absence

Cases of unauthorised absence will be dealt with under our Disciplinary Procedure.

Absence that has not been notified according to the sickness absence reporting procedure will be treated as unauthorised absence.

If you do not report for work and have not telephoned your line manager to explain the reason for your absence, your line manager will try to contact you, by telephone and in writing if necessary. This should not be treated as a substitute for reporting sickness absence.

Sick pay

You may be entitled to Statutory Sick Pay \(SSP\) if you satisfy the relevant statutory requirements. Qualifying days for SSP are Monday to Friday or your working days as set out in your employment contract and includes bank holidays.

You will normally be entitled to receive occupational sick pay (OSP) if you have complied with this policy in all respects. OSP is inclusive of any SSP that may be due for the same period.

OSP is paid based on 65 days' full pay and 65 days' half pay (pro-rated) in any 12 month rolling period inclusive of bank holidays. The 12 month rolling period means that we look back at the 12 months immediately preceding the current sickness absence for the purposes of calculating the total number of days sickness absence and entitlement to OSP.

For example, an full time employee is absent for 30 days from 1 June and receives full pay. The employee is then absent for a further 45 days and receives full pay for 35 days and half pay for 10 days. Any further absences due to illness up to 31 May the following year will be paid at half pay to a maximum 65 days in total.

If the employee is then absent again after 31 May, we will look back 12 months from the first day of absence to ascertain the total number of days paid absence taken and if, in the rolling 12 month period, the employee has been paid less than 65 days at full pay then the balance of the 65 days full pay will be paid before half pay recommences.

In any 12 month period a maximum of 65 days will be paid at full pay and 65 days at half pay (130 days in total, pro-rated).

If you have been on long term sick leave continuously for more than a year you will not qualify for OSP again until you have returned to work for a total of 3 months.

Depending on the circumstances, you may be eligible for benefits under the Group Income Protection scheme. Details of the Group Income Protection scheme can be accessed via the Flexible Benefits Intranet.

We reserve the right to withhold or withdraw OSP in certain circumstances including, but not limited to:

- where it has been communicated to you that disciplinary or performance management proceedings will commence or where either are ongoing
- where you have not followed the relevant reporting procedure
- where you refuse to comply with a request to be examined by occupational health or a specialist consultant and/or for a report to be provided to us
- where the absence is for elective surgery (excluding fertility treatment)
- after you have been given notice of termination of employment

Salary and performance review

Please see the Salary and Benefits Policy for more information on pay and benefits in connection with sickness absence.

Sick leave and Annual leave

Medical examinations

We may, at any time in operating this policy, require you to consent to a medical examination by our Occupational Health advisers and/or a doctor nominated by us (at our expense).

You will be asked to agree that any report produced regarding any such examination may be disclosed to us and that we may discuss the contents of the report with our advisers and the relevant doctor.

Return to work meetings

The purpose of a Return to Work (RTW) meeting is to welcome you back to work and check whether you are well enough to resume to usual duties.

A RTW meeting enables us to confirm the details of your absence and gives you the opportunity to raise any questions or concerns you may have and to bring any matters to your managers attention. This may include, any personal issues/underlying conditions that you wish to disclose.

It will help managers to develop a broader understanding of the reason behind sickness absence and identify any appropriate follow up action ie Occupational Health Referrals, Risk Assessments etc.

Returning to work on a phased programme

We are committed to helping employees return to work from sickness absence.

We will, where appropriate and possible, support returns to work by obtaining medical advice, making reasonable adjustments to the workplace, working practices and working hours, considering redeployment and/or agreeing a return-to-work programme with everyone affected.

In consultation with you and your line manager, a tailored return-to-work programme may be prepared by occupational health. Your pay during any return-to-work programme will be confirmed to you taking into account both the hours you work during the programme and the level of occupational sick pay that you are entitled to.

You will be entitled to full pay for the hours that you work as part of any return to work programme. Any hours that are recommended to be non-working, will be recorded as sickness and paid in accordance with the level of OSP that you are entitled to.

If after 12 weeks you are not making sufficient progress towards re-establishing your previous work pattern, we may discuss permanent adjustments to your contract of employment and working arrangements with a view to achieving an outcome that is satisfactory to you and the FCA.

If you are unable to return to work in the longer term, we will consider whether you are entitled to any benefits under your contract and/or our PHI scheme.

Absence management procedure

The following paragraphs set out our procedure for dealing with long-term sickness absence or where your level or frequency of absence concerns us. The purpose of the procedure is to investigate and discuss the reasons for your absence, whether it is likely to continue or recur and whether there are any measures that could improve your health and/or attendance. We may decide that medical evidence, or further medical evidence, is required before deciding on a course of action.

The FCA's formal absence management procedure has 3 stages. In most situations, the procedure will move from one stage to the next. There may, however, be occasions where this will not be the case and the process may start at a later stage.

We will notify you in writing of the time, date and place of any meeting, and why it is being held. Meetings will be conducted by your line manager and will normally be attended by a member of the HR Division.

You may bring a companion to any meeting under this procedure. The companion may be either a colleague (not a member of HR) or a trade union representative. If you or your companion cannot attend at the specified time you should let us know as soon as possible and we will try, within reason, to agree an alternative time.

If you have a disability, we will consider whether reasonable adjustments may need to be made to the sickness absence management procedure, or to your role or working arrangements.

Stage one absence management meeting

The purpose of a sickness absence meeting or meetings will be to discuss the reasons for your absence, how long it is likely to continue, whether it is likely to recur, whether to obtain a medical report, and whether there are any measures that could improve your health and/or attendance.

In cases of long-term sickness absence or more than 7 days, we may seek to agree a return-to-work programme, possibly on a phased basis.

In cases of intermittent short-term sickness absence, we may set a target for improved attendance within a certain timescale.

Following a stage 1 absence management meeting, if we decide that your attendance is unsatisfactory, we will give you a first absence warning.

Stage two absence management meeting

If, after a reasonable time, you have not been able to return to work or if your attendance has not improved within the agreed timescale, we will hold a further meeting or meetings. We will seek to establish whether the situation is likely to change, and may consider redeployment opportunities at that stage. If it is considered unlikely that you will return to work or that your attendance will improve within a reasonable time, we may give you a final absence warning that you are at risk of dismissal. We may also set a further date for review.

Stage three absence management meeting

If you have been warned that you are at risk of dismissal, and the situation has not changed significantly, we will hold a meeting to consider the possible termination of your employment. Before we make a decision, we will consider any matters you wish to raise and whether there have been any changes since the last meeting. The FCA will consider dismissing an employee on long-term sick leave only after it has made all reasonable and practicable attempts to support their return to work, including any reasonable adjustments if the employee has a disability.

Appeal

You may appeal against the outcome of any stage of this procedure. If you wish to appeal you should set out your appeal in writing to the Employee Relations Manager within 5 working days of the date on which the decision was sent or given to you. We will hold an appeal meeting which will be dealt with impartially and, where possible, by a more senior manager.

We will confirm our final decision in writing as soon as practicable. There is no further right of appeal.

6.2 Menopause policy

Our approach

Providing an inclusive and supportive environment, where all colleagues are treated fairly, with dignity, respect and understanding, and their health and wellbeing is fully supported, is one of our main priorities.

We recognise that, at any time, many colleagues will either be experiencing perimenopausal or menopausal symptoms or know someone who is. We also recognise the menopause as the important workplace issue it is.

We want to take a proactive approach, promoting greater understanding across the workforce so that people can be supported to give their best, regardless of perimenopausal or menopausal symptoms and their impact. We want our workplace to be one where colleagues feel able to have open and honest conversations about the menopause and ask for help, and managers and colleagues feel equipped and empowered to support them.

Policy statement

The aim of this policy and accompanying procedure is to:

- ensure that we work proactively to make adjustments, where necessary, to support those experiencing the menopause and to ensure the workplace does not make their symptoms worse.
- raise wider awareness and understanding across our whole workforce of the menopause and the symptoms colleagues may experience.
- make managers aware of their responsibility to understand the menopause and the related issues that can affect colleagues.
- provide greater clarity and direction on how we deal with menopause related issues, either for individuals experiencing them or those who are affected indirectly, for example, partners, colleagues or line managers.
- ensure consistent support is made available to those impacted by the menopause or its symptoms.

In this policy, where we refer to the menopause, we also mean the perimenopause.

The menopause largely impacts women in their 40s to 60s; however, it can occur at an earlier age such as those who have undergone a hysterectomy or cancer treatment. Other groups affected by the menopause at any age include those who have functioning ovaries, such as some transgender, some non-binary people and some intersex people. This policy is inclusive of all gender identities.

Disability, age, race, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation or marital/civil partnership status may also affect how menopause is experienced and managed. So, although it may be a natural life change for some, it can affect everyone differently.

This policy is intended to contribute to a positive employee experience but does not form part of an employee's contract of employment. This policy applies to all employees, contractors, consultants, agency workers and interns.

The accompanying Menopause procedure provides more information about the support available and how to access it.

6.3 No smoking and vaping policy

We are committed to protecting your health, safety and welfare by providing a safe place of work and protecting all workers and visitors from exposure to smoke.

Our workplaces are smoke-free in accordance with the smoking ban that came into force in England on 1 July 2007 under the Health Act 2006, and the similar ban that came into force in Scotland on 26 March 2006. Our policy also covers the use of all vaping products.

Where are smoking and vaping banned?

Smoking and vaping are not permitted anywhere in our workplaces, including the terrace in the London office and the areas immediately outside the entrances to the London and Edinburgh offices. The ban applies to:

- anything that can be smoked and includes cigarettes, pipes (including water pipes such as shisha and hookah pipes), cigars, herbal cigarettes; and
- anything that can be vaped including electronic cigarettes and non-tobacco products.

Hosts should ensure their visitors to the FCA are made aware of our policy. These rules also apply to anyone using our vehicles (including vehicles hired by the FCA) for work, whether as a driver or passenger.

In London, our offices are located in the International Quarter London (IQL) which is a smoke-free estate. Local signage provides further information.

Reasonable breaks for individuals are allowed provided these do not prevent them from satisfactorily carrying out their responsibilities and work duties, and there is no significant loss in productivity.

Breaches of this policy by any employee will be dealt with under our Disciplinary Procedure.

6.4 Drug and alcohol policy

Our employees are our most valuable resource and their health and safety is of the utmost importance. Drug and alcohol misuse has the potential to damage the health and wellbeing of our employees and threaten the success of our business.

There are often signs that might suggest that someone has a problem. These include a decline in work performance; a poor attendance record; unreliability; unexplained injuries; and changes in behaviour, such as irritability and lack of concentration.

Helping employees

We encourage you to seek help if you have an alcohol or drugs-related problem and to seek advice on the assistance available. You should discuss this with your manager, contact the HR Helpline or seek help through the confidential Employee Assistance Programme.

Once such an issue affecting your health comes to the attention of your manager or HR, other steps taken to support you may include a referral to our occupational health adviser.

Disciplinary action

We consider alcoholism and drug dependency as illnesses. Although our intention is to help employees with substance abuse problems, we may take disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal, for the following serious offences:

- possessing, using or selling illicit drugs on FCA premises, the premises of a regulated organisation and at any other event when representing the FCA
- working under the influence of alcohol, such as to impair performance or conduct
- drinking alcohol on FCA our premises (except when authorised by management)
- being under the influence of alcohol, drugs or other prescribed substances that impair performance or conduct while at work (including attending any event, whether social or otherwise at FCA our premises or elsewhere)

If an employee refuses to accept referral to specialist help, eg an Occupational Health Advisor, we may initiate disciplinary action.

Rehabilitation

The FCA will support employees who are undergoing treatment for an alcohol or drug problem. Employees on a rehabilitation programme will usually be subject to normal sickness/absence rules.

6.5 Eye tests

We recognise that some employees will require glasses or contact lenses for VDU work. We will contribute toward eye tests and eye care in accordance with our obligations under the Display Screen Equipment (DSE) Regulations 1992 (amended 2002).

We will contribute up to £25 annually towards the cost of an eye test carried out by a qualified optometrist. To claim for an eye test you should submit an Employee Expense report via Workday selecting expense type Eye Test and attach the receipt from the optometrist showing the value of the test.

If the test reveals that glasses or contact lenses are needed for VDU work, we will contribute up to a further £60 towards the costs of the glasses or contact lenses. If you wish to make a claim, your optician must provide a written statement to confirm the glasses or contact lenses are required for VDU use. We will not be able to reimburse you if the statement only confirms general use. You should submit an Employee Expense report via Workday selecting expense type VDU Glasses or contact lenses and attach your receipt and VDU statement from the optician. Once Expense Report has been approved by your line manager Accounts Payable will issue payment in their weekly settlement run.

6.6 Fertility treatment

We recognise that some colleagues may require professional medical support with starting a family which may include undergoing medical treatment. We recognise it can be a difficult time and want to provide support at work.

If you or your partner are undergoing fertility treatment you may take up to 3 days' unpaid leave in any 1 year. If you require additional time off, you should discuss this with your line manager who will be able to approve your request in Workday.

Fertility treatment differs case-by-case and in order that appropriate assistance can be offered, it is important that you discuss treatment dates and key stages with your manager.

Where possible, GP and hospital appointments which are not being taken as annual leave should be made for the beginning or end of the working day. This may not always be possible and where an appointment and travel time is likely to last over 2 hours, annual leave should be used.

Giving as much notice as possible of appointments will help with planning work. If appointments or treatment may be required at short notice please discuss this with your manager. A manager may ask to see an appointment card or supporting documentation.

You may wish to reconsider your work arrangements and assess whether a flexible working request is needed.

We understand that individuals may need to take delivery of medication and this should be discussed with your manager and HR Business Partner to make suitable arrangements. We take no responsibility for medication while it is on the FCA's premises and it remains your responsibility at all times.

We recognise that problems relating to fertility and conception can cause considerable psychological and physical distress and are sympathetic to those who decide to undergo this treatment. We provide a free Employee Assistance Programme (EAP) to all individuals, which gives confidential, impartial advice and support whenever it is needed.

If a course of treatment or a medical procedure causes illness and sickness absence, this will be recorded in line with the Sickness Policy.

6.7 Medical and dental appointments

Wherever possible you should arrange all medical (doctor, dentist and hospital) appointments outside normal working hours. If this is not possible, you should discuss this with your manager and try to arrange appointments at times which cause the least disruption to your work. You should also make up the time. Your manager may ask to see confirmation of the appointment or supporting documentation.

6.8 Stress at work policy

We are committed to identifying, tackling and preventing the causes of work-related stress and to providing appropriate support and consideration to staff suffering from stress, on a confidential basis where appropriate.

This commitment extends to maintaining a working environment that protects the psychological as well as physical health of all our employees, wherever possible.

What is stress?

The UK Health and Safety Executive define stress as the adverse reaction people have to excessive pressures or demands placed on them.

A certain amount of pressure can motivate us and enable us to perform at our best. However, when pressure becomes excessive we can potentially start to experience stress.

Pressures from outside the workplace, whether the result of unexpected or traumatic events such as accidents, illness, bereavement, family breakdown or financial worries, can result in stress. They can also compound normal workplace pressures.

We recognise that what triggers stress and the capacity to deal with stress varies from person to person.

Support

We are committed to helping staff who may be suffering from stress. We aim to do this in the following ways:

- identify workplace stressors as far as reasonably practicable and conduct stress risk assessments
- provide training for all people managers in good management practices
- provide confidential free counselling for staff affected by either work or external stress through an EAP (Employee Assistance Programme)
- provide adequate resources to enable managers to implement the FCA's agreed stress management strategy
- promote a culture of open communication, participation and encouragement
- strive to provide a workplace free from harassment, bullying and victimisation
- address violence, aggression and other forms of inappropriate behaviour through disciplinary action
- effectively plan and provide feedback on performance
- ensure that employees understand the standards of behaviour expected of them and others and act on behaviour which falls below those standards
- provide adequate training to ensure employees are able to carry out their roles
- monitor working hours to ensure employees are not overworking
- monitor annual leave to make sure employees are taking breaks from work to support your physical and mental wellbeing

Resolving stress

If you believe you are suffering from stress you should discuss this with your manager in the first instance. If you feel unable to do so you should contact the HR Helpline or access the EAP.

Once an issue affecting your health comes to the attention of your manager or HR, steps will be taken to address that issue. This may include a referral to occupational health and the completion of a stress risk assessment.

If you are absent due to stress you should follow the sickness absence reporting procedure in our Sickness Absence Policy.

6.9 Travel health policy

The aim of this policy is to minimise risks, as far as is reasonably practicable, to the health of staff who undertake business travel, and to minimise the impact of travel-related ill-health. It applies to all employees primarily if you are travelling to 'high risk' areas (ie areas other than Western and Central Europe, North America, Australia and New Zealand).

The FCA will work with you to ensure you are:

- adequately prepared for your journey
- fit to undertake that journey
- briefed with journey specific travel health advice and receive necessary vaccinations

You should consider your fitness to travel (including any vaccination requirements) prior to undertaking any overseas business travel. Should you have any concerns you are encouraged to undergo a health assessment with the Occupational Health Adviser 4 to 6 weeks before departure to allow sufficient time to ensure adequate protection.

The initial assessment will be in the form of a health questionnaire.

If any health issues are disclosed, you may need to be assessed further either by your GP or a medical advisor appointed by the FCA.

If you are considered unfit to travel, your line manager will be notified in writing by the Occupational Health Adviser. This notification will not disclose the reason you are unfit to travel.

Journeys to destinations of high risk (as determined by the TRAVAX database that is accessible by the Occupational Health Adviser) may need to be delayed to ensure you are fully protected by recommended and/or compulsory vaccines.

You are asked to take appropriate precautions and heed any advice given.

At the end of the consultation you will be asked to sign a declaration stating that, to the best of your knowledge, you have received the appropriate travel health advice, immunisation(s) and/or malaria prevention medication appropriate to the country/countries you are visiting.

If you refuse the recommended immunisation, the Occupational Health Adviser will inform your line manager and the Health and Safety Officer, who will consider the health and safety implications. This is to ensure that, as an employer, FCA we fulfil our duty of care to you and that, as an employee, you are not in breach of health and safety legislation. This could include a decision that you do not travel on business to the high risk area.

Post travel assessment

If you have concerns about your health following a period of overseas business travel, you should contact your GP.

A post-travel health assessment should be carried out in the following circumstances:

- if you experience any travel-related medical condition while abroad
- if you have a chronic disease or medical condition
- if you experience a fever, diarrhoea, vomiting, jaundice, urinary disorders, skin or genital infections in the weeks following your return from travel
- following a long stay abroad (i.e. three months or more)
- if you fall ill following your return to the UK

A medical assessment may include an appointment with the Occupational Health Adviser, completion of a post-travel health assessment questionnaire, or an appointment with a physician.

6.10 Health and safety policy

The FCA acknowledges and accepts the responsibilities placed on it as the 'employer' by the Health & Safety at Work Act 1974, and other relevant legislation. We are committed to ensuring the health and safety of staff and to providing a safe and suitable environment for all those attending our premises.

We review and publish our Health & Safety Policy statement annually which is approved by the COO. It is available to view on H&S noticeboards on the Intranet.

Accidents at work - accident reporting

All accidents, injuries and cases of ill-health caused by, or affecting, your work must be reported without delay. If you are injured, no matter how slight your injury may appear, you must always report it to your line manager, ensure that you are seen by a first-aider and that the details of your accident or injury are reported to Security Control. All dangerous occurrences and 'near miss' incidents should also be reported in the same way.

You must not work if you have taken medication or any other substance that could adversely affect your ability to operate equipment or work safely.

If you see a hazard or situation in which a potential accident could occur, or where an injury could be sustained, you should report it immediately to the Facilities Helpdesk.

First aid provision

Several employees are trained and qualified to give first aid. If you or anyone in the building requires first aid you should contact Security Control or dial 2222 in an emergency.

Emergency procedures - fire

We will regularly undertake fire risk assessments, take steps to minimise the risk of fire and appoint trained Fire Marshals to aid building evacuations.

Our fire evacuation practices and procedures are in accordance with our legal requirements and you should familiarise yourself with them.

All employees are obliged to report any concerns or fire hazards to the Facilities Helpdesk. for example, where corridors or other escape routes are obstructed; where fire doors have been propped open; or any faults with lighting or other equipment.

Detailed information on health and safety matters is in the FCA Health and Safety Management Framework, which is available on the Intranet's Health & Safety pages. The framework document contains obligations and operational arrangements on many topics including, for example: Driving at Work; further information about First Aid; Home Working; Manual Handling, Safety when working away from FCA Premises and many others.

In addition to the Policy and Management Framework there is mandatory eLearning, a mandatory Display Screen Equipment assessment module, and an emergency procedures video to provide additional information for staff. These can be accessed from the Health & Safety Intranet pages and Learn on

- 1.7.2 Special rules will apply if you are seeking selection as a PPC. You should discuss your intentions with your Director/Head of Department, the HR Helpline and the Communications Division.
